Tabula Exitii

– The Last Bookmark Before the System Boots

This volume is a threshold.

Tabula Exitii is the final detonation of raw, unfiltered intake – the dumping ground of my last singular bookmarks, deep dives, and inner scrolls before the grid clears and the true system begins. Pulled primarily from the haunted tunnels of 4plebs and my personal link labyrinths, this book is not a guide... it's a purge. A necessary overload.

The final memory dump before formal structure.

Every fragment here was too alive, too weird, too encoded to discard – so I encoded them instead. Each page pulses with the residual charge of the awakening process, the chaos of curiosity, and the untraceable journey from clueless seeker to system-builder.

Why This Book Exists

This is not the beginning of a new path.

This is the end of the wandering phase.

Everything up to this point has been padding – the background radiation of a system being born. Tabula Exitii finishes that padding, closes the loop, and clears the space for what's next:

- The Book of Links
- The Siguar Book System
- The launch of MagickOS 3.33

For the first time, the chaos will be mapped.

What Comes Next

MagickOS 3.33 is the first structured magickal OS that begins with the raw initiate – lost, curious, confused – and transforms them into an advanced practitioner through layered, modular systematization.

It's the full stack.

The map, the method, the myth.

But it couldn't exist until this book existed. Until the excess was expelled. Until the last unsorted pieces were honored.

Tabula Exitii is that honor.

One last transmission from the edge.

One last look back at the glitch before the system initializes.

What comes next is not a scroll.

It's a boot sequence.

– Ezekiel Redik Yarbrough

it's not the end of times even it's all manufactured if it was no one will give a shit if some dude dies in some solar system in the edge of some galaxy where as others have been here billions of years before and will be billions of years after us plus you might have a shit and u might be a loser but so the fuck am i too that doesn't make it ok or exciting if others will die without even knowing why

The image is a meme featuring two separate scenes with a man in the foreground and another in the background. The man in the foreground is wearing glasses, a black jacket, and has a beard. He is looking directly at the camera with a serious expression. Above his head, there is an American flag with the stars and stripes. The man in the background is wearing a black jacket and glasses, and he is looking away from the camera.

The meme contains text that reads:

"We invaded Iraq because they had WMD

Why don't you invade Russia?

Are you crazy? They have WMD"

The text is arranged in a way that suggests a conversation between the two characters, with the man in the foreground addressing the man in the background. The text is overlaid on the image, with the first line of text in the foreground and the second line in the background. The style of the image is humorous and satirical, with a focus on the absurdity of invading countries with weapons of mass destruction (WMD) and the lack of concern for the consequences.

The image is a candid photograph of a small, light-colored kitten sitting on a computer keyboard. The kitten appears to be looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. The kitten is positioned on the right side of the keyboard, with its front paws resting on the keys. The keyboard is a standard white color with a blue keycap. In the background, there is a computer monitor displaying a blue screen with some text and a few icons. The monitor is mounted on a wooden desk, and there is a computer mouse to the right of the keyboard. The image has a humorous tone, as indicated by the text overlay that reads "on my puter" in a playful font. The style of the image is candid and informal, capturing a candid moment of the kitten interacting with the computer.

The image shows a futuristic robot with a metallic body and a sleek, angular design. The robot has a large, imposing head with a visor-like structure and a pair of large, glowing red eyes. The body of the robot is equipped with multiple joints and appendages, including what appears to be a large, claw-like hand on the right side and a smaller, arm-like structure on the left. The robot's legs are articulated, suggesting mobility and flexibility.

The robot's body is equipped with a series of tracks, suggesting it is designed for mobility on various surfaces. The tracks are arranged in a manner that allows the robot to move in a manner that is not visible in the image.

The robot's design includes a series of mechanical parts and components, including what appears to be a large, circular, transparent panel on the top of the head, and a series of smaller, metallic components on the body. The overall color scheme of the robot is metallic, with a silver or gray body and a black or dark gray head.

The image is a digital rendering, and the background is plain and white, which highlights the robot and its features. There are no texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the robot's design and features.

The image is a digital illustration that depicts a scene from ancient Egypt. In the foreground, there is a large, ancient building with a blue and white color scheme. The building has a central entrance with columns and a doorway, and it is surrounded by a courtyard with a raised platform. The architecture suggests a place of significance, possibly a temple or a palace.

In the background, there are three pyramids, which are a significant element of Egyptian culture. The pyramids are depicted in a realistic style, with the topmost pyramid being the largest and the other two smaller. The sky is dark and cloudy, and the lighting in the image is dramatic, with a warm orange glow illuminating the scene.

A red arrow is pointing towards the top pyramid, indicating a specific point of interest or direction. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a 3D rendering, with a focus on the architectural details and the dramatic lighting. The image does not contain any text or other discernible details.

The image is a collage of two photographs, both featuring a woman with a serious expression. The woman in the left photo has long, straight hair and is wearing a white blouse with a collar. Her eyes are looking directly at the camera, and her mouth is slightly open. The right photo shows the same woman, but she is wearing a white jacket over a black top and has a black bag over her shoulder. The background of both photos is blurred, suggesting an outdoor setting.

is dark, with a hint of greenish color, which contrasts with the character's attire. At the bottom of the image, there is text in a white font that reads, "I came here to laugh at you." The text is centered and appears to be a dialogue or a statement from the character. The style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, with its distinctive character design and color palette. The image does not contain any other discernible objects or characters.

The image is a digital illustration featuring two characters seated at a table. The character on the left is a green frog with a rainbow-colored hat, and the character on the right is a man with a black beard and mustache, wearing a blue jacket. The frog is holding a microphone, suggesting it is a character from a video game or a meme. The table in front of them has a sign that reads "WE" in bold black letters, followed by "OUR" in smaller black letters. The background shows a park-like setting with trees, a building, and a sidewalk. The style of the image is humorous and seems to be a digital creation, possibly for a meme or a video game.

The image is a meme featuring two creatures, one resembling a wolf and the other resembling a demonic figure, set against a backdrop of a foggy forest. The wolf is standing upright on a grassy field, while the demonic figure is seen running towards the wolf. The wolf is facing the viewer, and the demonic figure is to the right. Above the wolf, there is a text that reads "Satanic Pedophilia Elites," and below the wolf, another text reads "Internet Racists." The overall style of the image is dark and somewhat eerie, with a focus on the contrast between the two creatures and the natural environment. The text is in a bold, capitalized font, which stands out against the darker background. The image seems to be a satirical commentary on the concept of pedophilia and internet racism.

The image is a screenshot of a Twitter post. The post is written in a combination of English and what appears to be a non-English language, possibly a script. The text is in a dark background with a lighter green border. The author of the post is identified as "WHISTLEBLOWER" and is followed by "@truth2424". The post is dated "February 24, 2023" and is numbered "14".

The post is divided into two main sections. The first section is a text message, and the second section is a list of tweets. The text message is a message to the author, expressing gratitude for the support and sharing of information. The author acknowledges that they have had people from all over the world share their information with them, and they have been able to use this information to create multiple platforms. The author also mentions that they have had to block followers on their own account due to the volume of information they have received.

The second section of the post is a list of tweets, which includes a tweet from "MJ12" and a tweet from "@truth2424". The tweets are not fully visible in the image, but the content of the tweets is not clear from the image provided.

The overall style of the image is informative and appears to be a screenshot from a social media platform, likely Twitter, as indicated by the username and the format of the post. The image does not contain any images or graphics, and the focus is solely on the text content.

The image is a sepia-toned black and white photograph featuring a figure that appears to be a humanoid alien. The alien is seated in a high-backed, ornate chair with a curved backrest and armrests. The figure is dressed in a dark suit with a high collar, and the suit is paired with a white shirt and black tie. The alien's face is characterized by large, round, dark eyes and a thin, pointed nose. It has a humanoid body with a slender neck and a small head. The alien's hands are clasped together in front of it, and it is looking directly at the camera.

To the right of the alien figure, there is a small, round table with a single object on it, which appears to be a small, round object with a dark, possibly metallic finish. The background of the image is plain and unadorned, with a textured wall that gives the impression of a room with a high ceiling. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of vintage or retro photography, with a grainy texture and a sepia tone that gives it a somewhat aged appearance.

The image is a black and white comic panel divided into two sections. The upper section shows a close-up of a character's face with a determined expression, with the character's eyes wide open and mouth slightly open, conveying a sense of determination or resolve. The lower section of the image is a speech bubble with the text "I CAN STILL COPE!" written in bold, capitalized letters, indicating a statement of resilience or determination.

The lower section of the image features a character with a surprised expression, with the character's mouth open and eyes wide, suggesting surprise or shock. The character's hair is styled in a way that it appears to be flying, and the character's expression is one of disbelief or shock.

In the upper left corner, there is a speech bubble with the text "STOP BITCHING" written in bold, capitalized letters, which seems to be a response to a previous statement or action. The upper right corner contains a speech bubble with the text "YOU CAN'T GET AWAY FROM MY FINGERS ON AMERICA" written in bold, capitalized letters, suggesting a threat or warning.

The video appears to be a still from a scene where two men are standing in front of a large, dome-shaped structure. The man on the left is wearing a helmet with a visor, and the man on the right is wearing a hat and a jacket. The background is a desert landscape with a large, dome-shaped structure that resembles a spaceship or spacecraft. The colors in the image are muted, with a warm yellow and orange hue dominating the background. The style of the image is reminiscent of vintage or retro-themed video content, with a grainy texture and a vintage aesthetic.

This is from a UFO documentary that aired on 1974 and re-released in 1976 and 1979. They say it happened on Holloman Air Force Base. In a later interview, with the people who made it, they say they saw the real footage of the aliens but were not allowed to use it and thus used drawings. They say the aliens looked liked us but with bigger noses and their clothes had some gold colors on it.

Do you believe this is real or connected to your story in anyway?

well ur question is pretty difficult but since ETE2 created Buddhism i would assume that karma is true or at least a proto version of it same as the Abrahamic religions that they also created but as for the body/vessel stuff no imagine u die and reincarnate as a pig pigs have smaller less developed brains than human then they would do shit that we don't subhuman stuff like eat shit etc now imagine a human soul born in a body with a less developed brain that has serial killer tendencies and starts killing ppl when he grows up is really his fault no cuz our bodies are kinda fucked up all over the place since our creators THE OLD ONES dumbed us down and shortened our life span before they left but if he was born in a perfectly healthy body with a well developed mind and he does evil shit then yeah that will impact his karma and he will suffer in his next life. NOW HERE IS THE REALLY GOOD PART THAT EVEN MCNEAL WON'T TALK ABOUT CUZ HE DOESN'T KNOW ABOUT HE NEVER SAW HIS LIVE THAT NIRVANA SHIT IS ON SOMETHING THAT IS A 10000% REEL SOME EYES I MEAN EXTREMELY RARE FEW RACES CAN LITERALLY CONTROL WHERE THEY GO AND WHAT THEY DO AFTER THEY DIE THE NEVER LOOSE MEMORIES LIKE US OR OTHER EYES AND WHEN THEY DIE THEY HAVE AN OUTTER BODY EXPERIENCE FROM THEIR OLD BODIES TO THEIR NEW BODY AND THEY ARE 100%CONSCIOUS DURING ALL THIS PROCESS AND THAT RACE HAS MEMBERS THAT HAVE BEEN ALIVE FOR A 1BILLION + YEARS LET THAT SINK IN 1 BILLION + YEARS AND THEIR NEW BODIES ARE JUST CLONES OF THE OLD ONE THAT THEY CREATE IN A LAB

I have an uncle who was convinced that the apocalypse would happen at the stroke of midnight on New Year's Eve 2000, because he believed that all the computers would shut down and civilization would collapse. So he invested most of his financial inheritance in prepper equipment and a small bunker. His panic scared pretty much all his friends away and the family didn't really want to be infected by his panic either and turned their backs on him. When, contrary to his honest expectations, the end of the world didn't come on January 1, 2000, he must have felt very stupid. In any case, he sold all his prepper stuff and went abroad with the rest of his money to start a new life somewhere else.

The image is a stylized illustration of a yellow emoticon with a frown, which is commonly used to represent a sad or concerned expression. The emoticon's eyes are closed, and its eyebrows are drawn in a downward direction, suggesting a sense of worry or concern. The emoticon is holding a black smartphone in its right hand, which is depicted with a heart symbol on the screen, indicating a connection or attachment to the device.

The background of the image is plain white, which contrasts with the yellow of the emoticon and the black of the smartphone, making the emoticon and the phone the central focus of the image. There are no texts present in the image. The style of the image is cartoonish and simplistic, with a focus on conveying a mood or emotion through the use of color and iconography.

The image is a digital illustration of a character that resembles a stylized version of the character Pepe from the popular internet meme "Pepe the Frog." Pepe is depicted with a green body, large eyes, and a red-brown mouth. The character is shown in profile, with the eyes looking slightly to the left and the mouth slightly open. The character is wearing a blue shirt, which contrasts with the green of Pepe's body. The background of the image is a solid light blue color, providing a neutral backdrop that allows the character to stand out. There are no texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the image is cartoon-like, with a simple and clean design.

If that will happen, fake alien invasion will only occur after the Rapture, as to deceive people what truly has happened, why tens of millions of people vanish, maybe more, true christians who have relationship with Jesus, and children under the age of accountability. Do not be deceived! Approach Jesus and you will be saved. We don't have to be here for the coming Tribulation, at least such is my hope. But even if we are, at least we know what the endgame will be through Book of Revelations, so we have time to have relationship with God, read Bible and choose the winning side.

I think each of us has seen warning signs for Rapture coming off. Eclipses, Blood Moons, the orbs around the globe. So let us all approach God and Jesus before Rapture has occurred! We can make it. Don't let doubts, anxiety, lies of the enemy win! We only need to pray for Jesus.

Jesus loves us, and being saved into eternal life is as easy as accepting him. Take care you all!

The image is a panoramic view of a snowy landscape, with a mountain in the background. The mountain is covered in snow and has a rugged, rocky surface. The sky is clear and blue, and there is a faint yellow line on the left side of the image, possibly indicating a path or direction. In the foreground, there is a large rock formation with a few small rocks scattered around it. The overall color palette is dominated by shades of white and blue, with the rock formations and the mountain in the background providing contrasting colors. There are no texts or discernible human figures in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the natural environment and the vastness of the landscape.

[9 / 5]The image depicts a post-apocalyptic scene with a large, dilapidated building in the center, which appears to be the capitol building of a fictional nation. The building is partially collapsed, with debris and rubble scattered around it. The sky is filled with dark, ominous clouds, and the overall atmosphere is one of desolation and decay.

In the foreground, there are several cars and other vehicles that are either burnt or damaged, suggesting a recent or ongoing conflict. The ground is covered in rubble and debris, and there are flames visible, indicating that the area has been severely affected by the destruction.

The image is rendered in a realistic style, with a focus on the destruction and the aftermath of a catastrophic event. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a scene from a science fiction or dystopian novel, with a heavy emphasis on the destruction and the aftermath of a catastrophic event.

The image depicts a close-up of a human body lying on the ground. The person appears to be deceased, with their skin and clothing stained with blood. The head is tilted back, revealing a disfigured face with a gaping mouth and exposed teeth. The person's torso is covered in multiple puncture marks, suggesting they may have been attacked or injured. The skin around the wounds is torn and bruised, with some areas appearing to be swollen. The person's clothing is torn and appears to be soaked in blood, further indicating a recent violent event. The ground around the body is covered in dried grass and small plants, and the overall atmosphere of the image is somber and eerie. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the gruesome details of the scene.

The image is a black and white cartoon illustration. At the top, there is a line graph with a horizontal axis labeled "Time" and a vertical axis labeled "Things Happen." The graph shows a clear upward trend, indicating an increase in the number of things that happen over time.

Below the graph, there is a speech bubble with text that reads, "If you would please consult the graphs." The speech bubble is in a smaller font size compared to the main text, and it is positioned to the right of the graph.

In the bottom left corner of the image, there is a small, black, rectangular object that appears to be a computer monitor. The monitor is turned off, and there is no visible content on the screen.

The style of the image is simple and cartoonish, with a focus on conveying a message about the relationship between time and the number of things that happen. The use of a graph to illustrate the trend is a common visual metaphor for data analysis and the concept of cause and effect.

The image is a meme featuring a character from the animated television show "The SpongeBob SquarePants" with a fish-like appearance. The character is depicted with a large, expressive face, wearing a blue shirt with a yellow collar and a blue vest. The character is holding a glass with a red liquid, which appears to be a type of juice or soda. The text "Here, have another" is overlaid on the image, suggesting a humorous or playful tone. The background is a dark, possibly prison-like setting with a barbed wire fence and a blue wall. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and exaggerated, typical of the meme format.

The image depicts a close-up of a human body lying on the ground. The person appears to be deceased, with their skin and clothing stained with blood. The head is tilted back, revealing a disfigured face with a gaping mouth and exposed teeth. The person's torso is covered in multiple puncture marks, suggesting they may have been attacked or injured. The skin around the wounds is torn and bruised, with some areas appearing to be swollen. The person's clothing is torn and appears to be soaked in blood, further indicating a recent violent event. The ground around the body is covered in dried grass and small plants, and the overall atmosphere of the image is somber and eerie. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the gruesome details of the scene.

The image is a collage of six photographs, each depicting a different aspect of government preparedness. The photographs are arranged in a two-column format, with the top half featuring a black background and the bottom half a white background.

In the top half, from left to right, the first photograph shows a person in a military-style uniform, with a rifle and a backpack, suggesting preparation for a mission or operation. The second photograph shows a large, armored vehicle with a gun mounted on its side, indicating military readiness. The third photograph shows a building with a flag on top, which could be a military base or a government facility.

The bottom half of the image features a black background with a white border. The first photograph shows a large, armored vehicle with a gun mounted on its side, similar to the one in the top half. The second photograph shows a building with a flag on top, which could be a military base or a government facility. The third photograph shows a large, armored vehicle with a gun mounted on its side, similar to the one in the top half. The text at the bottom of the image reads, "What the hell is the government preparing for?" This question seems to be a rhetorical statement, possibly suggesting that the image is a visual representation of the government's preparedness for various scenarios or events. The text is in a bold, capitalized font, which stands out against the dark background of the image.

I have a question regarding the dates. You mentioned that Spielberg is a puppet of MJ12. He is releasing a movie titled "Disclosure", it is dated for May of 2026. He would not release the movie while a fake alien invasion is happening.

My question is: Would this mean that the fake alien invasion, and possibly WW3, would happen after the movie gets pulled out of theaters.

The image is a photograph of a military aircraft in flight. The aircraft is a sleek, modern jet with a pointed nose and a large, pointed tail fin. It is predominantly gray with a black nose and cockpit. The aircraft is flying against a backdrop of a clear blue sky with scattered white clouds. The tail of the aircraft has a number "1" and a logo that appears to be a stylized "U" with a star above it. The aircraft is angled slightly to the left, and the angle of the photograph suggests it is moving from the left to the right of the frame.

There are no visible texts or markings on the aircraft that provide additional information about its origin or purpose. The style of the image is realistic and appears to be taken from an aerial perspective, capturing the aircraft in flight.

Aerospace geek here. I've adored a fair share of my modern fighterjets. That looks like a 6th generation NGAD, potentially a still undisclosed one.

For examples of UFO looking air dominance fighters, look at the F117, Northrop B2 Spirit, and the US' F-47 with Boeing.

>F117 pictured, note the F117 was BUILT IN 1983, classified military jets (hopefully) more advanced in 2025

"UFO" also has FAA compliant lights (kek). FAA powerful enough to force aliens to put anti-collision and position lights.

Basically, your UFO is probably a classified military fighter jet.

The image is a composite of three photographs, each depicting a different angle of a military aircraft. The aircraft is a stealth fighter jet, characterized by its sleek, angular design and the absence of visible windows or markings. The jet is captured in flight, with the wings angled outward and the nose pointed upwards, suggesting it is in the process of ascending or maneuvering.

In the top left photo, the aircraft is seen from a side angle, with the wings angled outward and the nose pointing upwards. The jet appears to be in a low-altitude flight, with the wings and fuselage clearly visible.

In the top left corner of the image, there is a text overlay that reads "Quwa Premium," which could be a brand or model name associated with the aircraft.

The style of the image is a photograph, and it is a composite of three separate images, likely intended to showcase the aircraft's design and features in different perspectives.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation. The conversation appears to be between two individuals, as indicated by the presence of two separate messages with timestamps and a list of numbers. The conversation is in English and is written in a casual, conversational style.

The first message, dated April 29, 2023, is marked with a red arrow pointing to the number 40233599. The text reads:

"Anonymous

04/29/23 (25) TUE (21:56:02) No. 40233599

I'm going to travel to Brazil then head south

fuck off we are full

04/29/23 (25) TUE (22:13:19) No. 40233032"

The second message, dated April 29, 2023, is marked with a red arrow pointing to the number 40233599. The text reads:

"Anonymous

04/29/23 (25) TUE (22:13:19) No. 40233599

The image is a high-resolution photograph of a military aircraft, specifically a stealth fighter jet, displayed indoors. The aircraft is predominantly black with a pointed nose and a large, triangular wing. It has a sleek, aerodynamic design with a pointed nose and a large, triangular wing. The aircraft is mounted on a concrete floor and is surrounded by a dark, industrial-style setting with metal beams and a concrete floor.

In the foreground, there are three individuals standing and observing the aircraft. They appear to be military personnel, with one of them wearing a white shirt and the other two in dark clothing. The individuals are positioned in a way that suggests they are looking at the aircraft, possibly discussing its features or preparing for a flight.

The image is taken from a high angle, providing a comprehensive view of the aircraft and the people around it. There are no visible texts or markings on the aircraft that provide additional information about its origin or purpose. The overall style of the image is realistic and appears to be taken in a controlled environment, such as a museum or an aircraft hangar.

The image is a painting depicting a scene from ancient Egypt, with a focus on the pyramids and the Nile River. The pyramids, which are the central elements of the painting, are large and white with a distinctive yellow top, reminiscent of the Great Pyramid of Giza. They are situated in the background, with the Nile River flowing in the foreground.

The painting is rendered in a realistic style, with attention to detail and color. The sky is a clear blue, and the sun is shining brightly, casting shadows on the ground. The Nile River is depicted with calm waters, and there are several boats and ships on the water, suggesting a bustling port or a busy river trade.

In the foreground, there are people and animals, including a large red boat with a tall mast and a smaller boat with a long pole. The people appear to be engaged in various activities, possibly related to the trade or transportation of goods along the Nile.

The overall composition of the painting is balanced, with the pyramids and the Nile River providing a sense of scale and context. The colors used are bright and vibrant, with the red of the boats and the green of the trees adding to the lively atmosphere of the scene. The painting is a realistic representation of a moment in ancient Egypt, capturing the essence of the time and place with great detail and color.

The image is a text excerpt from a document or article, likely from a scientific or academic publication, as indicated by the presence of a citation at the bottom of the page. The text is in English and is divided into two columns, with the left column containing the main body of the text and the right column containing a list of references. The main body of the text discusses the presence of water vapor in the Earth's atmosphere, specifically in the form of clouds, which is a significant factor in climate change. It mentions that the presence of water vapor in the atmosphere is a key indicator of the Earth's climate, and it is a key factor in the formation of clouds. The text also references the greenhouse effect, which is a concept in climate science, and the role of water vapor in this effect.

The right column lists references to various scientific articles and studies, indicating that the text is a summary or a review of existing research. The references are numbered, which suggests that they are cited in the text, and the text is formatted in a way that follows a typical academic citation style, with the author's name, the title of the work, the publication or journal name, the volume and issue number, the page number, and the year of publication.

The image is a screenshot of the text, and the text is in a standard font, which is consistent with the style of academic or scientific writing. The background of the image is white, which contrasts with the black text, making it easy to read. The overall style of the image is informational and academic, designed to convey the content of the text in a clear and concise manner.

The image is a two-panel comic strip featuring a character named "Pizza Cake" in a cartoon style. In the first panel, the character is shown in a dynamic pose, with one arm raised and the other extended outward, as if in the midst of a powerful punch. The character is wearing a black jacket, a red tie, and a brown baseball cap. The background is a solid pink color.

In the second panel, the character is shown lying on the ground, appearing to be in a state of distress. The character's face is contorted in pain, and there is a speech bubble above the character's head that reads, "This is all Joe Biden's fault!" The character is wearing a yellow shirt and a brown baseball cap.

At the bottom of the image, there is a watermark that reads "@pizzacakecomic" and a URL "path/to/pizzacakecomic". The overall style of the comic strip is humorous and satirical, with a focus on the character's exaggerated reaction to a political situation.

The image is a close-up of a character's face, specifically the head of a superhero, with a prominent red and black suit. The character's eyes are wide open, and the pupils are black, giving the impression of intense focus or alertness. The character's mouth is slightly open, and the teeth are visible, suggesting a determined or intense expression. The character's skin tone is a deep red, and the suit has a textured pattern that resembles the spider's web. The background is a warm, orange-yellow color, with a hint of a building or structure in the top right corner. There is a black and white striped object in the lower right corner, which appears to be a camera or a video camera. The style of the image is reminiscent of comic book or graphic novel illustrations, with a focus on the character's face and the details of the suit.

The image is a black and white illustration featuring a character with spiky hair and a pointed ear. The character is pointing to the left with one hand, and the other hand is extended outward, as if gesturing or drawing attention to something. The character is wearing a dark-colored outfit, which includes a long-sleeved shirt and trousers. The character's expression is neutral, and there are no visible texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of manga or anime, characterized by its simple lines and clean lines.

OP, I'm cool with you, but what value is in these threads? you say the world is ending and 60-90% are going to die, before joining a galactic federation. Okay.

So...are you posting this as a means of finding a solution to this? are you providing a solution to increase chances of survival?

are you doing anything other than being a new-age doomsday prophet on a digital soapbox, preaching everything yet explaining nothing?

I'm down for this, but based on the last threads, nothing of worthy note has been added for people.

The image is a photograph featuring a cat standing on a snowy surface. The cat is wearing a pair of overalls and appears to be looking upwards, possibly at something above. The cat's fur is a mix of brown and black, and it has a white chest and paws. The background is a snowy landscape with a few trees and a clear sky. Overlaid on the image is a text in a playful font that reads "da fuck they don't ova der." The text is overlaid on the image in a way that it appears to be a watermark or a sticker, suggesting that the image may be a meme or a humorous photograph. The overall style of the image is casual and lighthearted, with a focus on the cat's expression and the snowy environment.

The image is a side-by-side comparison of two different depictions of a character. On the left, the character is shown in a black and white line drawing. The character has short, straight hair and is wearing a white shirt with a collar. The drawing is simple and lacks shading, focusing on the character's facial features and the details of the shirt. On the right, the character is depicted in a darker, more detailed image. The character's hair is styled in a slicked-back manner, and the character's expression is serious. The character is wearing a white shirt with a collar, and the image has a more detailed and realistic appearance, with shading and texture.

The background of the image on the right is dark and appears to be an urban setting with buildings and streetlights. The lighting in the image is soft, with a bluish tint, which contrasts with the darker tones of the character's attire and the background. The image is a side-by-side comparison, allowing the viewer to compare the two depictions of the character.

Dude I had this same discussion with him in one go his first threads. He's just too retarded to actually articulate what he's saying because he's an ESL Tunisian. Arabs can articulate in a logical way that an English speaker can understand.

I think the main point is that the U.S. government is going to allow some kind of project bluebeam to unfold and then a real alien invasion will start a little later killing off most of the human race. This guy has no sources. He just tells beyond his neighbor is an old American glowie living in Tunisia who has planned out a way to escape the apocalypse. TLDR; According to OP none of us are gonna make it. So this thread is a waste of time.

The image is a two-panel comic strip featuring a cartoon dog character named Finn. In the first panel, Finn is sitting on a chair in a room with a fire burning in the background. He is wearing a hat and has a mug in his hand. The room is filled with flames, and the atmosphere is tense. In the second panel, Finn is standing in front of the same fire, but this time he is smiling and holding a cup of coffee. The text bubble above him says, "THIS IS FINE." The style of the comic strip is simple and cartoonish, with a focus on the character's expressions and the fire's intensity.

The image is a meme featuring two separate scenes with a man in the foreground and another in the background. The man in the foreground is wearing glasses, a black jacket, and has a beard. He is looking directly at the camera with a serious expression. Above his head, there is an American flag with the stars and stripes. The man in the background is wearing a black jacket and glasses, and he is looking away from the camera.

The meme contains text that reads:

"We invaded Iraq because they had WMD

Why don't you invade Russia?

Are you crazy? They have WMD"

The text is arranged in a way that suggests a conversation between the two characters, with the man in the foreground addressing the man in the background. The text is overlaid on the image, with the first line of text in the foreground and the second line in the background. The style of the image is humorous and satirical, with a focus on the absurdity of invading countries with weapons of mass destruction (WMD) and the lack of concern for the consequences.

The image is a digital artwork with a surrealistic style. At the center, there is a person with a face that appears to be wearing a hat and sunglasses, and they are holding a deck of playing cards with their right hand. The person's face is obscured by a mask, and they are wearing a hoodie. The playing cards are in motion, suggesting a sense of action or chaos.

The background is a gradient of pink and orange hues, with a blurred effect that gives the impression of a casino or gambling environment. The text "NOTHING EVER HAPPENS... I'M ALL IN" is overlaid on the image, written in a bold, capitalized font. The text is in white and red, contrasting with the warm colors of the background.

The overall composition of the image suggests a theme of gambling or a similar activity, with the person possibly playing a game of cards or engaging in some form of gambling. The text adds a humorous or ironic tone to the image, as it plays on the idea of nothing ever happening, which is often associated with gambling.

i know that the really advanced races can choose where they reincarnate and i also know that realllly reallly advanced ones the literal 10% of all ETE's in the universe can never forget and the hacked the system to the point of being capable the reincarnate at their own planet but as for the rest of life in the universe yes as for humans we are still children and most ETE's never reincarnate on this shit hole but their are some of us that matured enough to be reborn on another planet but those are like once in 100 years type of souls as for ghost those are para terrestrial from another dimensions that take the shape of dead humans to deceive their loved ones the only souls that don't reincarnate are the ones that become light beings that stay to watch over a loved one and once that person dies they reincarnate too

The image is a screenshot of a webpage with a photograph of a military aircraft. The aircraft is a fighter jet with a sleek, angular design, featuring a pointed nose and a large, swept-back wing. The jet is painted in a dark color, possibly black or dark gray, and has a distinctive, angular shape. The cockpit is visible, with a pilot seated in the center.

The text on the image is in a combination of English and Chinese, with the English text providing information about the aircraft, such as its name, model, and specifications.

The Chinese text is a list of features and specifications, which includes details about the aircraft's power, health, and weaponry. The text is presented in a standard font, and the layout is organized in a way that allows for easy reading and comprehension.

The image is a screenshot from a webpage, which suggests that the content is likely from a website or a blog discussing the aircraft. The presence of the text and the image together indicates that the content is likely related to military or aviation technology. The image does not provide any additional context or information beyond the text and the aircraft itself.

The image is a composite of four separate photographs, each depicting a different angle of a black object that appears to be a small, triangular-shaped object with a reflective surface. The object is positioned in the upper left corner of each photograph, and the images are arranged in a square grid format.

In the top left image, the object is captured from a side angle, with a slight reflection visible on its surface. The top right image shows the object from a slightly lower angle, with a slight shadow cast on the surface. The bottom left image provides a close-up view of the object, highlighting its reflective surface and the light source from the top left image. The bottom right image is a close-up of the object, focusing on the reflective surface and the light source from the top left image.

The background of each image is a gradient of purple and blue hues, which contrasts with the black object, making it stand out. The overall style of the image is a photograph with a focus on the object, with a slight artistic touch to the composition.

The image is a candid photograph taken in a bathroom. Two individuals are present, both standing in front of a mirror. The person on the left is wearing a black bodysuit with a high-waisted design, and a pair of black cat ears. They are holding a phone to their face, capturing a selfie. The person on the right is wearing a white t-shirt with the text "I'M A BAD BITCH" printed on it, paired with light blue shorts. They are also holding a phone to their face, and appear to be making a face.

The bathroom setting includes a white sink with a silver faucet, a white countertop, and a mirror reflecting the two individuals. On the countertop, there are various personal care items, including a bottle of perfume, a bottle of hand soap, and a vase with white flowers. The wall behind the mirror is painted green, and there is a door with a green door handle visible. The overall atmosphere of the image is casual and informal.

And in this sentence, you've made all this unsubstantiated claims. You've said what (vaguely) and when (vaguely), with no contextual foundation. I'm praying you can even understand what I mean.

Frankly, and I'm not trying to attack you here. It's clear you aren't very well-read, and I don't mean that to be an asshole, like honestly - it's just confounding that you can be surprised that everyone in the thread is making fun of you when you don't know how to be coherent.

The image is a meme featuring a woman with a serious expression, wearing a black top and a denim jacket. She has long, straight hair and is looking directly at the camera. The meme includes a text overlay that reads, "Him: give me two good reasons why we shouldn't break up?" and "Her:". The text is in white, contrasting with the darker background of the meme. The woman's face is partially obscured by the denim jacket, and the background shows a room with a yellow metal frame and a shelf with various items. The style of the image is humorous and seems to be a response to a breakup scenario.

The image is a self-portrait of a person, presumably a woman, taken indoors. She is wearing a gray tank top and has her hair pulled back. Her face is partially obscured by her hair, and she is smiling. Her skin appears to be wet, possibly from a shower or bath, and her makeup is visible, including eyeliner and lipstick. The background is blurred, but it seems to be an indoor setting with a red brick wall and a metal pipe. The lighting in the room is soft, and there are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is candid and informal, capturing a moment of the person's day.

The image is a political cartoon with a satirical tone. At the top of the image, there is a speech bubble that reads "ALL LIVES MATTER! NOW STAY THE HELL OUT OF MY COUNTRY!" The speech bubble is in a bold, capitalized font, emphasizing the sentiment of the message.

In the center of the image, there is a large, cartoonish figure of a woman with blonde hair, wearing a blue shirt with the American flag design. She appears to be in a state of distress or anger, with her mouth open and her eyes wide. She is holding a black book with the title "THE NEW BIBLE" in white text, which suggests a reference to the Bible. Below the speech bubble, there is a smaller speech bubble that says "I'M NOT A RACIST! I'M JUST A CHRISTIAN!" This statement is in a smaller font size compared to the main speech bubble, indicating a contrast in emphasis.

The background of the image is a landscape with a rocky terrain and a hazy sky, which adds to the overall somber and serious tone of the cartoon. The colors used in the image are muted, with the woman's blue shirt standing out against the darker tones of the landscape.

The style of the image is cartoonish and expressive, with a focus on the emotions and expressions of the characters. The use of speech bubbles and the bold, capitalized text in the speech bubble emphasize the urgency and intensity of the message being conveyed.

The image depicts a desolate, post-apocalyptic landscape. The sky is overcast with dark, ominous clouds, suggesting a stormy or stormy weather condition. The ground is covered in rubble and debris, with some areas appearing to be under water, indicating a flood or a river of fire. The ruins of buildings and structures are scattered throughout the scene, with some appearing to be in a state of disrepair or decay. The colors in the image are predominantly dark, with shades of gray and black dominating the scene. There are no discernible texts or human figures in the image. The overall mood of the image is one of desolation and destruction.

In all your research, and the info your contact shared with you, is there any videos or pictures randomly posted on the internet that got it right? Any alien pics, or UFO pics that you or your contact think are real?

The image is a collage of three black and white photographs, each depicting a different person. The person on the left is a woman with shoulder-length hair, wearing a white blouse and dark pants. She is standing outdoors with a serious expression on her face. The middle photograph shows a man with short hair, wearing a white shirt and dark pants. He is standing in front of a building with a tree in the background. The rightmost photograph features a man with short hair, wearing glasses and a dark shirt. He is seated on a bench with a relaxed posture. The text in the image is in Portuguese and appears to be a news article or a report, discussing the arrest of a person named Ali Omar Al-Amin. The style of the image is reminiscent of a newspaper or magazine article, with a focus on the individuals and their surroundings.

The image is a cartoon illustration featuring a character in a running pose. The character is a large, cartoonish figure with a large head, large eyes, and a wide smile. It has a red shirt with a white number "109" on the front. The character is wearing a blue helmet with white stars and a red band around the top. The character's hair is styled in a large, bushy, brown tail. The background is a green field with a white line running across it, suggesting a track or field setting. There are no texts or other discernible objects in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of the animated series "South Park," known for its satirical and humorous content.

The image is a stylized cartoon illustration featuring a young boy with blonde hair. He has a surprised expression on his face with wide eyes and a downturned mouth. The boy is seated in a wheelchair, which is colored in shades of blue and brown. He is wearing a red shirt with a white collar and a dark-colored belt with a red buckle. The boy's hands are resting on the armrests of the wheelchair, and his feet are resting on the footrest. The background of the image is plain white, emphasizing the boy and the wheelchair. There are no texts or other discernible objects in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of the "South Park" animated series, known for its satirical and often exaggerated depictions of characters.

You haven't said anything except that we are going to die. You're incoherent, and you don't have a straight story.

You've claimed alike invasions, nibiru (which is real), UFOs, chemical weapons, ww3, 50-90% of the population dying, and rising up against the elites. You've mentioned underground bunkers, military personnel with inside information, and trying to do the right thing.

And yet... you have no coherent story. You keep trying to pat yourself on the back for giving us information that you can't even articulate, except that anywhere between the next two weeks and two years that most of us are going to die for a whole multitude of reasons. You haven't picked on, or even two. You keep rattling off different reasons.

How is any of us actually supposed to save ourselves when the one telling us we're going to die can't even explain to us how it's going to happen?

I've seen several articles pop up now, on regular websites that this nibiru is coming.

There was even the rumor a few months back that jwst caught something coming towards us. It aligns with the climate change narrative that's been pushed on us for some time now.

I'm starting to get concerned that we actually are all fucked and the ancient flood myths are caused by this thing.

And so when I have come across mj's threads it does catch my eye, but the guys has no coherent story, so I'm not really sure what his angle is.

The image is a color lithograph or print depicting a man standing in a classical architectural setting. The man is dressed in a dark suit with a white shirt and a blue sash around his waist. He is wearing a white wig and has a white beard. In his left hand, he holds a large hammer, and in his right hand, he holds a scroll with text on it. The scroll is partially visible, with the visible part reading "The United States of America." The man is standing on a checkered floor, and the background features a classical architectural design with columns and a staircase. The style of the image is reminiscent of historical portraiture, with a focus on the subject's attire and the scroll, which suggests a connection to the United States of America.

He does sound schizo but he is correct, the world is obviously preparing for war. One need not be a psychic to know that. I have been saying it for a year. It got very obvious after January 20th. I do not claim to know the details but the overt actions of every nation of any consequence over the last six months tell me the world is preparing for war. It is no longer a matter of if, only when.

In the background, there are two flags. The flag on the left is green with a white star and crescent moon, and the flag on the right is green with a white star and red crescent moon. The room has a luxurious feel with gold detailing on the walls and a large chandelier hanging from the ceiling. The carpet beneath their feet is patterned with a floral design. The overall atmosphere of the image suggests a formal or official setting.

The image is a stylized, animated graphic with a predominantly yellow and orange color scheme. At the center of the image, there is a character with a fierce expression, glowing red eyes, and a sharp, angular face. The character's hair is styled in a spiky manner and is colored in a bright yellow. The character's hands are raised, with fingers spread wide, as if in a gesture of power or aggression.

The background of the image is dark and turbulent, with streaks of orange and red energy emanating from the character's hands, suggesting a sense of power or destruction. The text "ABSOLUTE HATING" is prominently displayed in the center of the image in bold, white letters, which stands out against the darker background. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a comic book or graphic novel illustration, with a focus on action and intensity.

The image is a black and white illustration featuring three characters. On the left, there is a character with long, flowing hair that appears to be in motion, as if they are dancing or moving. The character's hair is depicted with a sense of fluidity and movement. In the center, there is a character with a dark, shadowy appearance, possibly a ghost or a supernatural being, with a large, round eye and a small, pointed nose. The character's eyes are wide open, and their expression is one of shock or surprise. To the right, there is a character with a calm, serious expression, with their eyes closed and their hair neatly arranged. The character's hair is also depicted with a sense of order and neatness. The background is plain and dark, which contrasts with the characters and emphasizes their features. There are no texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of manga or anime, with a focus on character expression and movement.

The image depicts a close-up of a human body lying on the ground. The person appears to be deceased, with their skin and clothing stained with blood. The head is tilted back, revealing a disfigured face with a gaping mouth and exposed teeth. The person's torso is covered in multiple puncture marks, suggesting they may have been attacked or injured. The skin around the wounds is torn and bruised, with some areas appearing to be swollen. The person's clothing is torn and appears to be soaked in blood, further indicating a recent violent event. The ground around the body is covered in dried grass and small plants, and the overall atmosphere of the image is somber and eerie. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the gruesome details of the scene.

The character has a light-colored, spiky hair that is styled in a short, spiky cut. He is wearing a white, patterned shirt with a black collar and a black band around his neck. The character's skin tone is a light brown, and he has a muscular build. The background is a gradient of pink and blue, with a large, detailed, pink flower-like shape behind the character. The character's expression is intense and joyful, with a wide grin. There are no visible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, with a focus on character design and expression.

The image is a digital graphic with a cartoon-style illustration. At the top, there is a large text in bold, black letters that reads "COPIIUM OVERDOSE." Below this, there is a depiction of a green character with a surprised expression, wearing a red baseball cap with the text "KEEP CALM AND CARRY ON" written on it. The character is holding a hand with a collection of blue pills. The background is a solid, light green color. The overall style of the image is humorous and satirical, with a focus on the text and the character's surprised expression.

The image is a two-panel comic strip featuring a character named "Pizza Cake" in a cartoon style. In the first panel, the character is shown in a dynamic pose, with one arm raised and the other extended outward, as if in the midst of a powerful punch. The character is wearing a black jacket, a red tie, and a brown baseball cap. The background is a solid pink color.

In the second panel, the character is shown lying on the ground, appearing to be in a state of distress. The character's face is contorted in pain, and there is a speech bubble above the character's head that reads, "This is all Joe Biden's fault!" The character is wearing a yellow shirt and a brown baseball cap.

At the bottom of the image, there is a watermark that reads "@pizzacakecomic" and a URL "path/to/pizzacakecomic". The overall style of the comic strip is humorous and satirical, with a focus on the character's exaggerated reaction to a political situation.

fact is there is enough evidence from millions of people to prove there is most likely various races of aliens.

i still find aliens hard to believe, but thinking we are the only humanoid race here or even out there seems harder to believe, i have also seen a UFO, whether it was an alien craft or not i dont know.

The image is a cartoon drawing with a simple, black and white color scheme. At the center of the image, there is a character with a stern expression, wearing glasses and a bow tie. The character's right hand is raised, as if gesturing or pointing. Above the character's head, there is a rectangular sign with the text "Nothing Ever Happens" written in a casual, handwritten style. The sign is placed on a desk, and there is a small red apple on the desk to the left of the sign. The background of the image is plain white, emphasizing the character and the sign. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and seems to be a humorous or satirical representation.

The image is a close-up of a stylized human head with a soft, smooth texture. The head is tilted slightly to the left, and the eyes are closed, suggesting a state of relaxation or contemplation. The skin tone is a warm, natural color, and the hair appears to be flowing, giving the impression of a gentle breeze or a gentle touch. The background is softly blurred, with a soft gradient of light and dark tones, which could be interpreted as a sky or a soft, diffused light source. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, characterized by its exaggerated features and vibrant colors.

Israel did 9/11.

<https://m.youtube.com/watch?v=4qwfH7QVpXM>

<https://archive.org/details/TeixeMarrsWithGuestVictorThorn-TheZionistPlottersBehindThe9-11>

Israel has a long history of using false-flag attacks against us.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Lavon_Affair

>The Lavon affair was a failed Israeli covert operation, codenamed Operation Susannah, conducted in Egypt in the summer of 1954. As part of a false flag operation, a group of Egyptian Jews were recruited by Israeli military intelligence to plant bombs inside Egyptian-, American-, and British-owned civilian targets: cinemas, libraries, and American educational centers. The attacks were to be blamed on the Muslim Brotherhood, Egyptian Communists, "unspecified malcontents", or "local nationalists"...

And let's not forget the USS Liberty:

<https://m.youtube.com/watch?v=YZYjRREqUF0>

<https://m.youtube.com/watch?v=JITBsNMcn8A>

Israel's attack on the USS Liberty was a failed attempt at a false-flag operation. The plan was to sink the Liberty with no survivors and blame it on the Egyptians so that the U.S. would bomb Cairo and send in troops. Fortunately, the Liberty survived (but with 34 dead and 171 wounded). Unfortunately, shabbos goy President Lyndon Johnson (whose mistress, Mathilde Krim, was a Mossad agent) made sure the entire incident was swept under the rug, and the crew of the Liberty was threatened with court martial if they spoke to the press about what happened.

Here are some of the people who helped plan the 9/11 false-flag operation and carry it out: Ehud Barak, Ariel Sharon, Binyamin Netanyahu, Dov Zakheim, Michael Chertoff, Philip Zelikow, Ehud Olmert, Larry Silverstein, Dick Cheney, Donald Rumsfeld, and George W. Bush, along with the scores of Israeli operatives arrested by the FBI but ordered released by Chertoff and returned to Israel where they were lionized.

Nuke Tel Aviv as payback for 9/11 and give what's left of "Israel" back to the Palestinians.

Idiotic take, al-Sharaa is no more a terrorist than anyone else is. He's a hero who defeated Assad, liberated the Syrian people and got absolutely punishing sanctions lifted. He cared about prosperity for Syria instead of war and achieved it.

Every time Assad talked, people walked away fucking hating the guy. Every time al-Sharaa speaks, all sorts of people end up liking him. That should be a clue.

Weird how nobody can point to anyone who got "headchopped" despite dropping that epithet against al-Sharaa. The slander this hero has been forced to put up with from the people who sided with a chemical weapons war criminal, man

The image is a still from a film or television scene featuring a man in a serious expression. He is wearing a black beanie on his head, a dark-colored leather jacket, and a light blue shirt. His facial expression is serious, and he is looking off to the side with a slight frown. The background is blurred, suggesting motion, and there is a hint of a window or door in the background. The lighting in the image is soft, casting a gentle glow on the man's face. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is realistic, capturing a moment in a scene that is not fully visible.

The image is a black and white line drawing of a man's face. He has a stern expression, with his eyebrows drawn in a straight line, and his eyes are narrowed. He is wearing glasses and a white shirt with the text "Billions must die" written across the front. The man's right hand is holding a small object, which appears to be a red button. The background is plain and white, emphasizing the drawing. The style of the image is cartoonish and simplistic, with a focus on the facial features and the text on the shirt.

The image is a stylized, cartoon-style illustration of Spider-Man, a popular character from the Marvel Comics universe. Spider-Man is depicted in a seated position, with his hands clasped together in front of him. He is wearing his iconic red and blue suit, which is detailed with a spider emblem on his chest. The background is dark, with a greenish hue, and there is a hint of a room with a fan and a lamp. The style of the image is reminiscent of the early 2000s, with a focus on the character's iconic red and blue suit. There are no texts present in the image.

The image is a digital representation of a page from a book or a document, featuring a large, bold, white lightning bolt in the upper right corner, which is the central visual element. The lightning bolt is accompanied by Arabic text, which is written in a script that is not entirely clear due to the resolution of the image. The background of the image is a dark blue sky with a silhouette of a building, which appears to be the Kaaba, the most sacred site in Islam. The Kaaba is located in Mecca, Saudi Arabia. The text is written in a language that is not English, and it is in Arabic script. The style of the image is a combination of a photograph and a graphic design, with the photograph capturing the lightning bolt and the silhouette of the Kaaba, and the graphic design providing a backdrop for the text. The overall impression is that of a religious or spiritual theme, possibly related to the Kaaba or Islamic culture.

I might be entirely wrong on this, but hunting/foraging/fishing in Siberia seems like a decent survival strategy if things happen. The formerly comfy places (warm, high population density) will be the worst. You also have plenty of energy sources to survive through most things even with just basic tech functioning. Discounting a Chinese invasion, which seems unlikely, Russia could power through most things.

The image is a black and white illustration featuring a character that resembles a cat with large, expressive eyes. The character has a pointed ear and a small, round head. It is holding a gun in its right hand, which is pointed towards the viewer. The character's expression is one of determination or aggression, with its mouth open slightly and its eyebrows raised. The character's hair is styled in a way that suggests it could be a wig or a stylized representation of a cat's fur. The background is plain and white, which contrasts with the black outlines of the character and the gun, making the character the focal point of the image. There are no texts or additional elements in the image.

Hey anon, X lurker here. I saw your first round of posts awhile back, and desu only really absorbed the gist of it. Figured it was the same as the other blue beam style texts: bits of truth with flagrant eye catching larp shit. Then I saw the kepler organisms article hit the news. Now Im convinced you have some real info seeing the US work with Ahmed al-Sharaa.

Idk if you saw it but about a month or 2 before you started posting a warning was posted on X, something along the lines of "His name is Ahmed Al-Sharaa. Those worthy of knowledge have been informed. My duty here is complete." At the time we debated over whether he was the AC or the Mahdi, still not sure on that one. Regardless my lunatic intuition tells me this shit 100% on the scale of pre-meditated bullshit. Anyway I just wanted to say I respect you preaching as you are as frequently as you do, knowing you get shit on by like 60-70% of the thread.

The image displays a text in a language that appears to be Russian, with a mix of Cyrillic and Latin script. The text is written in a formal and academic style, with a mix of paragraphs and headings. The content of the text seems to be discussing a topic related to computer science, specifically focusing on the use of programming languages and their impact on the development of software.

The text is divided into several sections, each with a heading that indicates the topic or section of the text. The headings are in bold and are followed by a list of bullet points, which are likely to contain the main points or arguments being made in the text. The text is written in a serif font, which is commonly used for formal documents and academic papers.

The image is a scanned document, and the quality of the text is not perfect due to the resolution and the way the text is presented. However, the content appears to be clear and legible, and the text is well-structured, with each section clearly separated from the others.

There are no images or graphics present in the image, and the text is entirely in Russian. The style of the image is informational, and it is used to provide a snapshot of the content of the text without any additional context or visual elements.

English translation:

As we know, the implications involving the threat of western hegemony on our respective national security has led to proposals involving a series of coordinated measures. Over the course of the last decade, our security efforts have met surprising challenges, but have also made incredible strides overcoming many obstacles. For this reason, we continue to assert the necessary resolve. Our liasons have reached out to the appropriate parties and have solidified a mutual understanding of the next steps which need to be taken in order to ensure the security of our respective national interests. Our sacrifices on this matter underscore the magnitude of what is at stake, namely of which is the threat of bad actors encroaching our longstanding sovereign territories, along with the uncertainty that follows, both in regards to our interests and existence. These matters cannot be taken lightly, considering the historical struggle of our populace.

Our allies in the pacific and the middle east have already signed off and ratified the accordance. Our liasons are in contact with our latin american partners and will certify the final agreement which will be enacted no earlier than June.

Mission objectives are as follows:

June 2025

- Begin shipments of military-grade missile systems to Latin American partners
- Complete a full mobilization of Russian military personnel at the Belarus/Ukrainian border
- Ratify and approve the Yemen strike against Israel
- Activate cells in North America

July 2025

- Receieve confirmation of Iranian military buildup and start of Operation True promise III
- Await confirmation of military mobilization of partners in the pacific

August 2025

- Commence the Middle East theatre
- Approve strikes planned by our pacific partners
- Commence the Pacific theatre

-Final approval of incursion from Belarus

-Final approval of decisive action against Kyiv

September 2025

-Prepare limited ground operation in Syria.

The control panel has various dials and indicators, including a digital display showing "112" and a temperature gauge with a red needle pointing to the number "112." The text on the control panel includes warnings and instructions, such as "WARNING" and "PLEASE DO NOT TOUCH THE DIODE." The background is out of focus, but it appears to be an indoor setting with a hint of a room with a window. The style of the image is candid and appears to be taken in a casual setting.

He has a bald head and is smiling at the camera. He is wearing black dress shoes and has a gold pin on his lapel. The background shows a stone archway with a curved design, suggesting an old or historic building. The lighting in the photo is dim, with the man's face illuminated by artificial light, which casts shadows on his face and the ground. There are no visible texts or distinctive markings in the image. The style of the photograph is candid and appears to be taken in a public setting, possibly a street or alleyway.

The image is a digital artwork that appears to be a painting or a digital illustration. It features a surrealistic landscape with a central figure that resembles a humanoid figure with a large head, a large body, and a small head. The figure is surrounded by a fiery, rocky terrain with a large, dark, ominous sky overhead. The figure is holding a large, round, blue object in its hands, which seems to be a representation of the Earth.

The sky is filled with dark clouds and lightning, suggesting a stormy or apocalyptic atmosphere. The overall color palette is dominated by dark reds, oranges, and blues, with some areas of lighter colors, such as the sky and the rocky terrain.

At the top of the image, there is a large, bold text that reads "JESUS TOLD US WHAT WE WOULD SEE! LOOK!" The text is in a bold, sans-serif font and is colored in a dark, almost black color.

Below the central figure, there is a list of names and descriptions of various elements in the artwork. The names are written in a smaller, serif font and are listed in a vertical column. The descriptions are in a smaller, sans-serif font and are also listed in a column. The names and descriptions are not fully legible due to the resolution and angle of the image.

The style of the image is reminiscent of surrealism, which often combines elements of the real world with fantastical or dreamlike imagery. The artwork seems to be a commentary on the concept of the "end of the world" or a similar apocalyptic scenario, as suggested by the text at the top.

The image is a split-view photograph of two ancient Egyptian reliefs. On the left, there is a relief depicting a figure seated on a throne, holding a scepter and wearing a crown.

The figure is shown in profile, with a beard and a long beard. The relief is in a reddish-brown color, and the background is a rough, textured surface.

On the right, there is a relief of a seated figure holding a scroll and wearing a headdress. The figure is depicted in profile, with a long beard and a long, flowing hair. The relief is in a lighter, beige color, and the background is a more uniform, lighter shade.

The style of the reliefs is reminiscent of ancient Egyptian art, characterized by detailed carvings and a focus on the human form. The reliefs are set against a plain, neutral background, which allows the figures to stand out prominently. There are no visible texts or inscriptions on the reliefs.

supplication. The background is dark, with a sense of chaos and destruction, suggesting a battle or a significant event. The colors used in the painting are predominantly warm, with a palette that includes shades of orange, yellow, and red, which contribute to the dramatic and intense atmosphere of the scene. The style of the painting is realistic with visible brushstrokes, and it is rendered in an oil or acrylic medium, which gives it a textured and three-dimensional appearance. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image.

"@johnmiltbank" followed by a tweet. The tweet is written in English and reads: "Like most Marxists, the excellent Terry Eagleton is a near-Ruskinian on the brink of admitting that socialists have to be pro-trad. But cannot quite bring himself to admit that tradition needs good 'Kings and nobles' besides a justly treated peasantarchy."

Below the tweet, there is a large image of a man in a suit and tie. The man appears to be smiling and is the central figure in the image. The background is blurred, but it seems to be a room with warm lighting, possibly a bar or a restaurant.

At the bottom of the image, there is a button with the text "Click to read" and a blue arrow pointing to the right. The text "UnHerd" is also visible, suggesting that the image is from a website or platform associated with the name "UnHerd."

The people are dressed in traditional clothing, suggesting a cultural or religious significance to the scene.

The background of the image is filled with mist or fog, creating a sense of mystery and tranquility. Beyond the mist, there are trees and hills that are partially obscured by the fog, adding depth to the landscape. The sky is clear, with the sun or moon visible through the mist, casting a soft glow over the scene.

The overall color palette of the image is soft and muted, with the white of the monument contrasting against the green of the grass and the blue of the sky. The lighting suggests that the photo was taken during the early morning or late afternoon, when the sun is low in the sky. The image does not contain any discernible text.

Hello Paulines, Chosenite here. Why do you practice a form of Kabbalah? It can only be understood after mastering the Torah and mastering the Law, what could you possibly get from it?

Hi Mr Chosen. You have the timelines a little backwards. Kabbalah (medieval) is what happens when you copy Gnosticism (late antiquity) homework and change some of the names around to avoid the plagiarism detectors, down to the diagrams, the presence of the Shekinah, the unity with God etc. You guys added your usual ethnic supremacism and all that, so you definitely made it your own, but there is little to no fundamental innovation from your end.

Selling your soul for what?

Money, fame, women?

These worldly things, they are not the reward promised to the faithful.

That is not the reward of a Christian who devotes his life to the faith of Christ.

He is wedded to Jesus through the same kind of fidelity as a good wife.

Does a wife sell herself to her husband, like a prostitute would?

Or is she consecrated unto him; with him, in him, through him, in the unity of the Holy Spirit.

Gifts are freely given, not purchased.

Christ blood has purchased all men, and yet you have not sold yourself to him but given your life as he gave himself for you.

Hope that helps, might be inadequate idk.

The books are of various sizes and colors, with the most prominent being a red book titled "The Secret of Secrets" by Dan Brown. The book is open to a page with a title and a paragraph of text. The text is in English and appears to be discussing the concept of privacy and the role of technology in it. The book is the central focus of the image, with the other books partially visible in the background. The lighting in the image is dim, with the focus on the book and the surrounding area. The style of the image is a close-up photograph with a focus on the book, capturing the details of the book's cover and the text on the page.

The image is a photograph of a page from a book or a document, specifically a section titled "Kind of nondualism." The page is divided into two columns, with the left column listing different types of nondualism and the right column listing the corresponding dualisms. The text is in English and is written in a serif font, which is commonly used for academic or formal documents.

1. Anthropological
2. Perceptual
3. Ontological
4. Epistemological
5. Ethical
6. Religious
7. The dualism between self and other
8. The dualism between self and God

3. The dualism between the phenomenal and the absolute
4. The dualism between the absolute and the phenomenal
5. The dualism between the phenomenal and the absolute
6. The dualism between the absolute and the phenomenal
7. The dualism between the absolute and the absolute

The text is in English and appears to be discussing the nature of nondualism, which is a philosophical concept that seeks to understand the nature of reality by distinguishing between the self and the other, the self and God, and the absolute and the phenomenal.

The text seems to be discussing the different types of nondualism and their corresponding dualisms, with a focus on the philosophical implications of these distinctions.

The image is a photograph, and the background is not visible, so the focus is solely on the text and the layout of the page. The text is in a serif font, which is commonly used for academic or formal documents, and the page appears to be from a book or a document, as indicated by the reference to "Bradt" and the mention of "The same 1988 as Brown's TCD and meditation and other references."

The titles of the books are visible, and they include titles such as "The Key to Power and Personal Peace," "The Key to Power and Personal Peace," "The Key to Power and Personal Peace," and "The Key to Power and Personal Peace." The books are of various sizes and colors, with some appearing to be older editions.

In the foreground, there is a book titled "Three Magic Words" by Gerald Clark, which is lying flat on the table. The background features a decorative object resembling a sculpture or sculpture of human faces, with the faces turned in different directions. The setting appears to be a room with a warm, ambient lighting, possibly from a fireplace or a similar source.

The text in the image is mostly in English, and it includes a quote from Gerald Clark, which reads: "See the 3rd photo which shows not only Cassidy's book but also Anderson's book along with his earlier 1948 book Three Magic Words which was originally written. for me, mysticism is the whole of the gospel. "This is life Eternal that they might know thee the one true God and Jesus Christ whom thou has sent" IS the mystical experience.

So all Christian praxis is mystical in some sense. Being cognizant of that lens is just compelling and helpful to me.

The image is a screenshot of a digital interface, likely a digital educational tool or a digital presentation, with a focus on the concept of "The Ultimate God" as depicted in the top right corner. The interface is divided into two columns, with the left column labeled "No Ultimate" and the right column labeled "The Ultimate." Each column contains a list of terms, with the terms "God" and "The Ultimate" being highlighted in bold.

The left column lists "1. No Ultimate" as the first term, followed by "2. Naturalistic Atheism" and "3. Monotheistic Atheism." The right column lists "1. No Ultimate" as the first term, followed by "2. Adnostic Atheism" and "3. Monotheistic Atheism."

In the bottom right corner, there is a button labeled "Go" with a red background and a white border. The button is accompanied by a small icon of a person with arms outstretched, symbolizing a welcoming gesture.

The overall style of the image is simple and clean, with a focus on clarity and readability. The use of blue and white colors gives the image a professional and educational feel. The text is in a sans-serif font, which is easy to read against the white background. The layout is organized in a grid format, with each term in its own column, making it easy to navigate and understand the information presented.

The text is in English and is formatted in a standard academic style, with a title at the top of the page and a list of contents below it. The page is divided into two columns, with the left column containing the title and the right column containing the content.

The title of the chapter is "Foundations," and the content below it is titled "Third Contradiction." The text is written in a formal and academic tone, discussing the foundations of reading Greek texts. It mentions the importance of understanding the context of the text, the role of the reader, and the role of the translator. The text also discusses the use of the "Third Contradiction" as a tool for understanding the text, and how it can be used to identify and correct errors in translation.

The text is organized into sections, with the first section titled "Third Contradiction" and the second section titled "Third Contradiction." The text is written in a clear and concise manner, with bullet points and numbered lists to aid in the reader's understanding. The text is in a larger font size compared to the rest of the text, which is typical for academic or formal writing.

The image is a page from a book, specifically a section of text that appears to be discussing the concept of visions in early Christianity. The text is in English and is written in a formal, academic style, which is typical of scholarly articles or essays. The text is divided into paragraphs, and the page number is not visible, so we cannot determine the exact page number.

The text discusses the experiences of individuals who claim to have had visions, particularly those who claim to have had visions of the early church. The author, A. I. Boruchov, is quoted as saying that the experience of seeing from a perspective above time is a common theme in the writings of Christian theologians. He also mentions that the experience of seeing from a perspective above time is not unique to Christianity but is a common theme in the writings of Christian theologians.

The text also touches on the idea of the supernatural and the role of the heart in experiencing it. It suggests that the heart is the center of the supernatural experience, and that the heart is the seat of the soul. The author also mentions that the heart is the seat of the soul, which is a concept that is often associated with the idea of the heart being the center of the soul.

I'm strongly considering fully calling myself a Christian since I've always believed in God and Christ, but I've been hesitant about committing to the faith because I'm not sure I like the idea of going to church on Sundays rather than practicing privately, plus I feel as though because I've tried to reach out to God and he hasn't always answered, I wonder if he even likes me or thinks I'm too depraved for him.

I feel as though traditional Christian denominations wouldn't accept me because of my fascination with the occult and mysticism too.

How do I deal with this? How can I directly communicate with God and know where I stand with Him. I want a dialogue with him.

Christianity needs communion. You cannot be a Christian outside of a Eucharistic communion.

You need to find the right parish with the right priest. Just don't be the guy super into the occult but hint gently that it's within your interests. You might be surprised with how many priests are knowledgeable in this. Also mysticism is mainstream now in traditional Christianity. Every Orthodox priest has read Lossky's The Mystical Theology of the Eastern Church and considers mysticism to be at the root of the faith. I bet also that a lot of Catholic priests have read Meditations on the Tarot.

The image is a screenshot of a Twitter post by Michael Martin, who is identified as a Sophiologist. The post is a text-based conversation, and it appears to be a response to a tweet by another user. The text is in English and is divided into two columns. The first column contains the text of the post, while the second column contains the user's tweet. The post discusses the concept of apocalypse and the way in which the history of Christian consciousness has always been preordained. It mentions that the history of Christian consciousness has always been a passive foreboding, and that the form of the world is determined exclusively by God's judgment of the world. The post also touches on the idea that the end of the world is actively, creatively prepared for man, and that the end of the world will be accompanied by the feeling of terror. The post ends with a quote from Nikolai Berdyaev, which is attributed to 119 views. The time of the post is indicated as 00:00 AM on January 3, 2026.

I have been trying to learn more about the supposed influences on the OT and other religions, Greek myth is too well known to me so i looked into Zoroastrianism, all the supposed influences from Zoroastrianism on Second Temple Judaism come from the Hellenistic Period which doesn't add up, and the earliest texts the Gathas contain Near Eastern material which is a mystery I can't explain, they also believe in a creation week but they don't call them Days but Gahs, i think of them as "Aeons", and they think that Heaven is made of Stone and later out of Metals, something that also exists in Egyptian myth

After that I started looking into "Near Eastern Religion", which is a bit of a mess, I can't find good books on it, but from what I know I divide it into two groups, three if we count Egyptian myth as well, Levantine and Mesopotamian, the former is the Canaanite myyh, I don't know how it connects to Egyptian religion, but the Ugaritic texts we have are connected to Indo-European Hurrian myth (they share some gods), the latter is Sumero-Akkadian religion, which is Sumerian religion adopted by the Semitic Akkadians. Now i want to know, how is Genesis connected to the religion of Sumer, Akkad, Babylonia and Assyria? How is Moses connected to Egyptian myth? How were the Kingdoms of Israel and Judah connected to Levantine myth?

Later on they all get Hellenized, Philo of Byblos who lived Anno Domini knows his Phoenician Gods but thinks that his Elion (El Elyon) conceived Heaven (Ouranos) and Earth (Rhea) with his wife Beirut, then Heaven and Earth make El, El later on fights Heaven and castrates him, so Elion isn't a thing in Greek Myth but he's basically -G-od, Beirut is like Gaia, Heaven is Ouranos, El then is Cronos who castrates his father, his people also identified Baal Hadad with Zeus, so a battle between Baal Hadad and El like how Zeus fights Cronos also probably happened and we just don't know about it, this later material doesn't connect to the OT

The text is in a serif font, which is commonly used for academic or formal documents. The text is divided into paragraphs, and the content is dense with information, suggesting that it is a scholarly or academic piece.

The text discusses the term "Christian theosophy" and its relation to various philosophical movements. It mentions that Christian theosophy is a tradition that extends from Jacob Boehme (1725-1784) to William Law (1766-1781), Friedrich Christian Oettinger (1745-1841), Louis-Claude de Saint-Martin (1745-1808), and Franz von Bader (1765-1841). The text also references other figures such as G  nther D. K  rper, Metzius, and others.

The text is structured in a way that provides a historical context for the development of Christian theosophy, discussing its origins, influences, and the contributions of various figures. It also touches on the philosophical ideas and concepts that underpin Christian theosophy, such as the idea of a living, loving Person, and the idea of man's rebirth. The text is written in a way that is dense and technical, with a focus on the historical and philosophical aspects of Christian theosophy. The use of citations and references to other works indicates a scholarly approach to the subject matter.

The image is a digital artwork that combines elements of a religious painting with a political or historical scene. In the foreground, there is a figure seated at a desk, dressed in a dark suit and tie, with a white shirt and a blue tie. The figure appears to be a man, possibly an older individual, with a serious expression on his face. He is holding a pen in his right hand, and his left hand is resting on the desk.

In the background, there is a large, ethereal figure of a man with long hair and a beard, wearing a white robe. This figure is positioned behind the seated figure, and it seems to be a representation of a divine or spiritual presence. The background is filled with a soft, warm light, and there are various objects on the desk, including a book, a pen, and a small object that appears to be a medal or a pin.

The overall style of the image is reminiscent of religious art, with a focus on the figure of the seated individual, who seems to be in a contemplative or solemn mood. The presence of the ethereal figure in the background adds a layer of mystery or spiritual significance to the scene. The colors used in the artwork are soft and muted, with a palette that includes shades of brown, beige, and white. The overall composition suggests a narrative or symbolic representation, possibly relating to the intersection of faith and politics or the role of leaders in society.

The image features a stylized representation of a cross, which is the central object. The cross is depicted with a rich, warm color palette, predominantly red and brown, and is set against a backdrop of a sky with a gradient of colors, transitioning from a deep blue at the top to a lighter blue at the bottom.

Above the cross, there are several birds in flight, appearing to be in mid-air. The birds are depicted in a realistic style, with a variety of shapes and sizes, and are rendered in a darker shade of brown, contrasting with the lighter colors of the cross and sky.

The overall style of the image is artistic and symbolic, with a focus on the cross and the birds, suggesting a religious or spiritual theme. The use of color and the stylized representation of the cross and birds give the image a sense of movement and dynamism.

In Martinism, the sword often represents the Divine Word, the truth that separates light from darkness and grants spiritual discernment.

The sword cuts, symbolizing the act of separation, illusion from truth and the fallen state from the path of reintegration.

Saint-Martin rejected external magic and ceremonial violence, teaching that the true battle is internal. Accordingly, the sword also signifies moral struggle, conscience, and active resistance to ego, pride, and ignorance.

This isn't two flavors of the same religion but two opposing worldviews. I suggest you choose the truth (Christianity) and enter the household of YHWH. Because the Lord God doesn't treat Christians as peasants but He adopts them as family and commissions them as ambassadors and soldiers of his realm.

Not only that but Christians are authorized to drive back the darkness and empowered to rebuke, bind, and stomp the demons and the devil underfoot.

He who is of The Lord and not of this world, shall share His Destiny, His Heiratage, and His Immortality.

I've been going to church for several months now. I've been praying (mainly for others, their safety, them finding God, etc) the whole time. When I do pray for myself, it's been for clarity and guidance. I'm by no means a perfect Christian, but I've always been told that God loves us regardless.

So why does God ignore my pleas? All I want is some guidance, a bit of a push towards the right path. Not millions of dollars, not overwhelming international recognition...just some sort of "hey, you should look into this" or "stick with this", instead I'm still struggling with the same self-doubt and lack of direction. I want to write, but I'm so burnt out on trying and getting nowhere that I don't know what to do.. I'm 40 and I've entirely failed my sons and my wife because I wasted my life trying to succeed when it's starting to feel like God either wants me to fail, or I'm in His blind spot and He cannot hear me. The image is a painting that depicts a scene in a rustic cabin interior. A man in a white robe stands on the left side of the frame, his arms outstretched as if welcoming or comforting someone. He has a serene expression and is wearing a white garment that appears to be a robe or cloak. The man's posture and the way he is looking suggest a sense of warmth and care.

On the right side of the painting, a young man is seated on a bed, looking up at the man in the robe. He is wearing a light-colored shirt and has a slight smile on his face, indicating a sense of comfort or familiarity. The bed is covered with a quilt that has a patchwork design, and there is a wooden nightstand beside the bed.

The cabin itself has a rustic appearance with wooden walls and a wooden floor. The lighting in the room is soft and warm, with sunlight streaming in from the left side of the frame, casting gentle shadows and highlighting the textures of the wooden elements. The overall mood of the painting is peaceful and intimate, with a focus on the interaction between the two figures.

The image is a black and white map depicting the state of Deseret from 1845 to 1851.

The map is oriented with north at the top and is divided into two main sections. The upper section is labeled "State of Deseret" and the lower section is labeled "State of Utah." The map shows the boundaries of the states, with the western boundary marked by the Rocky Mountains, the eastern boundary marked by the Mississippi River, and the northern boundary marked by the Great Salt Lake.

The map includes various geographical features such as rivers, mountain ranges, and cities. For instance, the Colorado River is depicted, and the cities of Salt Lake City and Denver are shown. The map also includes a legend on the bottom left corner, which likely provides information about the scale and the names of the states and cities.

The map is dated 1845-1851, as indicated by the text at the bottom of the map. The style of the image is historical, with a focus on geography and the historical context of the time period. The map is a representation of the geographical layout of the state of Deseret during the specified time period.

The image is a vintage illustration that depicts a scene of a group of people engaged in a physical altercation. The setting appears to be a rural or semi-rural area with a landscape that includes hills and a distant mountain range. The sky is partly cloudy, suggesting a day with fair weather.

In the foreground, there are several individuals who seem to be in the midst of a fight. One person is lying on the ground, possibly injured, while others are in motion, with some appearing to be in a defensive or aggressive stance. The colors used in the illustration are muted, with a palette that includes shades of brown, green, and blue, which gives the scene a realistic and somewhat somber tone.

The style of the illustration is reminiscent of early 20th-century art, with a focus on realism and a sense of movement. The figures are drawn with a degree of detail, and the composition is balanced, with the action taking center stage. There are no visible texts or discernible brands within the image. The overall mood of the illustration is one of conflict and tension.

At the top, the first section is labeled "FIRST ESTATE" and is marked with a sun symbol. It includes the "First Estate of the Celestial Kingdom" and the "Promordial Trinity." The "Promordial Trinity" is depicted as a group of three celestial figures, with the sun symbolizing the Father, the moon symbolizing the Son, and the stars symbolizing the Holy Spirit.

The second section, labeled "SECOND ESTATE," is marked with a double sun symbol. It includes the "Second Estate of the Celestial Kingdom" and the "Word of Wisdom." The "Word of Wisdom" is represented by a yellow line that curves upward, symbolizing the teachings of the Bible.

The third section, labeled "CELESTIAL KINGDOM," is marked with a large sun symbol. It includes the "Celestial Kingdom" and the "Apostasy." The "Apostasy" is represented by a yellow line that curves downward, symbolizing the rejection of the teachings of the Bible.

The diagram also includes a series of celestial bodies, such as the sun, moon, and stars, which are connected by lines to represent the progression of the celestial kingdoms. The sun symbolizes the Father, the moon symbolizes the Son, and the stars symbolize the Holy Spirit.

At the bottom of the image, there is a copyright notice that reads "© Institute for Religious Research."

The image is a visual representation of the biblical concept of the progression of the celestial kingdoms, with each stage marked by a different symbol and a corresponding set of celestial figures. The image is a photograph of the LDS Temple in St. George, Utah, taken from a distance. The temple is a large, white, Gothic-style structure with multiple spires and a central tower. It is surrounded by a well-maintained lawn and is framed by a row of palm trees. The sky is clear and blue, and the sun is shining brightly. The temple is situated in a park-like setting with manicured grass and a variety of colorful flowers. There are no visible texts or discernible actions in the image. The style of the image is a standard, non-stylized photograph with a focus on the architectural details of the temple.

It's a covenant practice. Members promise to give back a portion of what God has given them, and in return they believe God deepens trust, faith, and blessings. The focus is personal sacrifice and discipleship, not paying for salvation. Nobody is forced to do it.

>apostasy leading to a fate worse than the lowest sinners

It's not about punishing people who struggle, disagree, or stop attending church. The doctrine is really about agency: God honors the direction a person chooses. Exaltation in Mormon belief is about wanting to live a life aligned with God forever. If someone openly rejects Him after knowing and accepting those covenants, it's simply the natural result of walking away from what brings His presence.

Not a Mormon (yet) btw, but they are one of the few groups that manage to maintain a relatively virtuous society in these times. To me, that's a sign they haven't forgotten God's law and therefore aren't punished as much as everyone else.

The image is a screenshot of a Twitter post from a user named "Kesha Parrington." The post is dated December 14, 2020, and is titled "Interlocking particles." The post discusses a book by Arthur Lewis titled "The Great Chain of Being," which explores the cosmological system of thinkers such as Plato and Aristotle. The post mentions that the book is a "very detailed and intricate" work that delves into the nature of the universe and the nature of the human mind. The post also references a quote from the book, stating that the "very smallest and lowest parts of creation are no less vital to nature's divine economy than the largest and highest parts."

The post includes a link to a website called "Church Times," which is likely a reference to a publication or news source. The text is in English and is written in a casual, conversational tone. The image is a screenshot of the Twitter interface, showing a tweet with a tweet interface, a search bar, and a list of tweets. The tweet is in a dark background with a white font, and the tweet is in a larger font size compared to the rest of the text, which is a common design choice for tweets to stand out. The tweet is a single line, and the text is centered within the tweet interface.

The image depicts a stylized representation of a figure, likely a deity or a mythological character, with a predominantly blue and gold color scheme. The figure's face is characterized by a fierce expression with large, red eyes and a wide, open mouth, suggesting a sense of anger or power. The eyes are accentuated with a red tint, and the mouth is adorned with a large, curved, red tongue. The figure's hair is styled in a manner that gives it a serpentine appearance, and it is adorned with a necklace and a decorative headpiece.

The figure is seated on a throne-like seat, which is embellished with intricate gold and red designs, and is supported by a large, ornate, gold-colored base. The throne's design includes a circular medallion with a pattern that includes floral motifs and geometric shapes. The figure's attire includes a blue robe with a red and gold border, and a sash with a pattern that includes a combination of red and gold colors.

The background of the image is a rich, deep red with gold accents, which contrasts with the blue and gold of the figure's attire and the throne. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of traditional Asian art, with a focus on the intricate details and the use of color to convey emotion and power. There are no discernible texts or inscriptions within the image. The image is a digital rendering, likely created for artistic or religious purposes.

The image shows a close-up of a book with a red and white cover, open to a page with text in Spanish. The book appears to be a religious or spiritual text, as indicated by the presence of a Bible-like structure with a red and white cover. The text on the page is in Spanish, and the book is open to a page with a verse from the Bible, specifically from the book of Matthew, chapter 28, verse 19.

In the foreground, there are several objects placed on a table. On the left side, there are two golden-colored objects that resemble candle holders with a curved design. These objects are not clearly visible due to the angle and focus of the photograph. On the right side, there are three objects that appear to be small, round, and possibly made of glass or crystal. These objects are placed on a white surface, and their exact nature is not clear from the image.

The background of the image is blurred, but it seems to be a room with a blueish hue, possibly indicating a room with a window or skylight. The lighting in the room is soft, and the overall atmosphere of the image is calm and serene. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image that provide additional context or information.

Yes, and the values that built early America were heavily rooted in scripture.

Whenever a people followed God's laws, honesty, chastity, generosity, Sabbath observance, they prospered more than their neighbors. When they abandoned those laws, they declined. The Mormons try to live those laws consistently, so it makes sense they'd reap similar blessings.

We can see a lot about this in the OT.

The image is a collage of various elements, each with a distinct style and content. At the top, there are two coins, one silver and one gold, with inscriptions that are not fully legible. Below the coins, there is a red map with a white cross, which is a common symbol for Switzerland. To the right, there is a bronze statue of a bull, which is a common symbol for strength and power. Below the statue, there is a black and white photograph of a person standing in front of a statue of a woman holding a torch, which could be interpreted as a representation of a torchlight procession or a commemoration event.

In the bottom left corner, there is a text that reads "Führerinnen: 'We are the Sisters of La Salle, being derived from the Templars, name Schweitzer-Schweitzer's made, derived from SCHWester der I.S.S.S. Schweitzer Land, the 'Land of The Sisters' is created many times when we Templars founded our country, in 1291, simultaneously orchestrating our displacements for the Year 1937.'" This text suggests a connection between the Templars and the Schweitzer family, and the creation of the "Land of The Sisters" in 1291, which is a significant event in the history of the Templars.

In the bottom right corner, there is a photograph of a man standing at a podium with a flag and a coat of arms, which could be interpreted as a representation of a national or official figure. The man appears to be speaking or addressing an audience, as indicated by the podium and the flag.

The collage is presented in a grid format, with each element occupying its own square, and the text is aligned to the left. The overall style of the image is formal and historical, with a focus on commemorative and symbolic elements.

The Curse: Pasiphaë's husband, King Minos, angered the sea god Poseidon by refusing to sacrifice a magnificent white bull that Poseidon had sent him as a sign of divine favor. As punishment, Poseidon (or in some versions, Aphrodite) cursed Pasiphaë to fall madly in love with the bull.

The Deception: Driven by this unnatural desire, Pasiphaë enlisted the help of the brilliant craftsman and inventor Daedalus. He constructed a hollow, life-like wooden cow, covered with real cow hide, in which Pasiphaë could hide to consummate her union with the bull.

The image displays a stone relief sculpture, which appears to be a part of a larger architectural or decorative element. The sculpture features a figure that resembles a mythical or mythological creature, possibly a serpent or a dragon, with a humanoid head and body. The creature is depicted with a wide, open mouth, and its body is adorned with intricate patterns and designs. The figure is holding a staff in one hand and a flower in the other, suggesting a connection to nature or a deity.

The background of the sculpture is a dark, possibly stone-like material, which contrasts with the lighter color of the figure's skin. Above the figure, there is a decorative element that resembles a fan or a crest, adding to the overall aesthetic of the piece. The sculpture is set against a black background, which further accentuates the details of the stone and the figure.

The style of the sculpture is reminiscent of ancient or classical art, with a focus on detail and craftsmanship. The carving appears to be of a high quality, suggesting that the sculpture may have been created in a time when such art was more common. The image does not provide any text or additional context, and the focus is solely on the sculpture itself.

The image is a sepia-toned illustration that depicts a scene of religious or spiritual significance. At the center of the image, a large cloud of smoke or mist rises from the ground, creating a sense of mystery and drama. Above this cloud, there is a ladder that ascends into the cloud, suggesting a journey or ascent.

On the ladder, there are figures that appear to be angels or divine beings, some of whom are holding hands, indicating a sense of unity or shared purpose. The figures are dressed in robes and are holding objects that resemble books or scrolls, which could symbolize knowledge or wisdom.

Below the ladder, there is a figure lying on the ground, seemingly in a state of exhaustion or despair. This figure is wearing a long robe and a head covering, which could suggest a religious or spiritual significance.

The background of the image is filled with trees and foliage, providing a natural setting for the scene. The overall composition of the image suggests a narrative of spiritual or religious journey, with the ladder and the figures on it being central to the story. The sepia tone of the illustration gives it a historical or classical feel.

View SameGoogleiqdbSauceNAOTrace Candy-Cane-Classic.jpg, 940KiB, 1860x3060

The image displays a candy cane with a distinctive red and white striped pattern. The candy cane is oriented vertically, with the red stripes running from the top to the bottom and the white stripes running from the bottom to the top. The candy cane appears to be made of a soft, flexible material, possibly plastic, and is designed to resemble a traditional candy cane. The background of the image is plain and white, which contrasts with the candy cane, making it stand out prominently. There are no texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is a clear, straightforward product photograph, intended to showcase the candy cane without any distractions.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a series of stylized snakes with black and white checkered patterns. The snakes are arranged in a diagonal line, with the first snake on the left appearing to be the largest and the last snake on the right the smallest. The snakes have a three-dimensional appearance, with the curves of their bodies and tails creating a sense of depth and movement. The background is a checkered pattern with alternating black and white squares, creating a visually engaging contrast. At the bottom of the image, there is a text that reads "THE GOD OF THE BIBLE" in a bold, capitalized font, followed by "DOGETT'S GOSPEL OF THE NEW TESTAMENT" in a smaller, lowercase font. The style of the image is modern and digital, with a focus on abstract and geometric shapes.

The image is a black and white illustration featuring two distinct objects. On the left side, there is a stylized representation of an egg with a crescent moon above it, resembling a sacred or magical egg. The egg is depicted with a textured surface, and the crescent moon is outlined in a darker shade, giving it a three-dimensional appearance.

On the right side, there is a depiction of a snake coiled around an egg. The snake is drawn with a simple, linear style, and its body is drawn in a more detailed manner, with its scales and texture clearly visible. The egg is also drawn with a similar level of detail, but the snake's body is not fully visible, only the head and body of the snake.

The image is labeled with the text "Fig. I.1" in the top left corner, indicating that this is the first illustration in a series. Below the illustration, there is a caption that reads "Sacred Egg of Heliopells, and Typhon's Egg, from Eratosthenes's Mythology, vol. 62." This suggests that the image is part of a larger work, possibly a book or a collection, and it is discussing the mythological significance of these two objects.

The style of the image is reminiscent of early 19th-century engravings, with a focus on detailed linework and a sense of craftsmanship. The black and white color scheme gives the image a classic, timeless feel.

The image is a black and white photograph that appears to be a still from a film or a video. It features a figure standing in the foreground, who is facing away from the camera, and appears to be in a state of distress or distressful emotion. The figure is wearing a long, flowing dress that reaches down to their feet, and a hat that is tilted back on their head. The background is dark and somewhat foggy, with a faint glow or light source that casts a soft light on the figure. The overall mood of the image is somber and eerie, with the figure's posture and the dim lighting contributing to a sense of unease. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the photograph is reminiscent of early to mid-20th-century film or video art, characterized by its grainy texture and the use of black and white tones.

The image is a close-up portrait of a person with a focused expression. The individual has long, wavy brown hair and is wearing a baseball cap with a dark color. The cap is positioned on the top of the head, covering the forehead. The person's eyes are looking directly at the camera, and their lips are slightly parted, suggesting a moment of contemplation or thoughtfulness.

The person's nails are painted a dark blue color, and they are adorned with a ring on the ring finger of their left hand. The person's skin tone is fair, and the lighting in the image is soft, creating a warm and inviting atmosphere.

The background of the image is blurred, drawing focus to the person in the foreground. The overall style of the image is candid and natural, capturing a moment in the person's life. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image.

The image is a close-up photograph of a person with a dramatic makeup and hairstyle.

The individual is wearing a large, golden headdress with large, curved horns on top.

The headdress is adorned with intricate patterns and is draped over the person's head, covering their hair and neck. The person's face is partially obscured by the headdress, with only their eyes and nose visible. They are looking off to the side with a serious expression. The background is blurred, but it appears to be an outdoor setting with a hint of a building or structure in the distance. The lighting in the image is soft, casting a warm glow on the person's features. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is artistic and dramatic, with a focus on the person's attire and the dramatic makeup.

The Book of Enoch (Ethiopic/Dead Sea gems, suppressed by Nicaea's censors) details the Watchers' fall; 200 Irin descending Mount Hermon, teaching forbidden arts, mating with daughters of men to birth giants. But Enoch's scryings reveal divine foreknowledge: God warns Noah, yet permits the corruption, binding the Watchers only post-flood (Enoch 10–15). Why allow it? The plan: Nephilim as catalytic chaos, their violent renown shattering pre-Fall harmony to inject duality—free will's glitch in the toroidal egg, sparks trapped in matter for the soul's arduous ascent.

The image is a composite of two separate photographs. On the left, there is a close-up of a person's face, with their hands on a tree trunk. The person appears to be looking through binoculars, suggesting they might be observing something in the distance. The background is blurred, but it seems to be a natural setting with trees and foliage. On the right, there is a stylized image of two eyes, one above the other, with a swirling design around them. Below the eyes, there is text that reads "Eye of Ra" and "Eye of Horus," which are symbols often associated with ancient Egyptian culture. The text is in a bold, sans-serif font and is black, contrasting with the lighter background of the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a vintage or historical photograph, with a focus on the eyes and the text, possibly indicating a connection to ancient Egyptian symbolism or mythology. The overall composition suggests a theme of exploration or discovery, as suggested by the binoculars and the text.

The image is a stylized cartoon or comic illustration featuring a character that appears to be SpongeBob SquarePants. SpongeBob is peeking out from a blue circular opening, which is part of a larger blue structure that resembles a submarine hatch. SpongeBob's face is visible through the opening, and he has a surprised expression with wide eyes and a slightly open mouth. His hair is yellow, and he is wearing a red shirt with a white collar. The background is a dark blue color, and there are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of the style commonly associated with the SpongeBob SquarePants series.

The image is a text excerpt from a document or article, likely a book or a scholarly article, as indicated by the presence of a header with the title "Gnostic Apocrypha: Planta Sophia, Hypostasis of the Archons." The text is in a plain, unadorned font, and the content is in English. The text is divided into two main sections, each with a heading and a paragraph. The first section is titled "Gnostic Apocrypha: Planta Sophia, Hypostasis of the Archons," and the second section is titled "The Ploma overflows knowingly—" and is followed by a paragraph. The text appears to be discussing the Gnostic concept of Sophia, the mother of the gods, and the Archons, who are the guardians of the divine plan. The text seems to be discussing the concept of the Ploma, which is a divine substance that is said to be the source of the divine plan. The text also mentions the concept of the divine seed, which is said to be a divine substance that is used to force the divine plan. The text concludes with a statement about the divine right of humans to exceed the Ploma's harmony. The overall tone of the text is scholarly and academic, with a focus on the Gnostic and theological aspects of the subject matter.

The image displays a section of a relief sculpture, which appears to be a part of a larger artifact, possibly a relief panel or panel from a wall. The sculpture is carved from a material that has a reddish-brown hue, suggesting it may be made of stone or a similar material. The relief depicts a scene with figures engaged in various activities, some of which are dynamic and others more static.

The figures are arranged in a linear fashion, with some figures positioned in the foreground and others in the background. The figures are depicted in a variety of poses, with some standing upright, others in motion, and a few in a seated or reclining position. The figures are adorned with clothing and accessories, such as headdresses, necklaces, and bracelets, which are intricately detailed.

The style of the relief is reminiscent of ancient Egyptian or Mesopotamian art, characterized by the use of hieroglyphs and the depiction of deities and mythological figures. The figures are rendered with a high level of detail, suggesting a high level of craftsmanship and a focus on the narrative or story being told.

The background of the relief is not clearly visible, but it appears to be a continuation of the scene, with the same figures and activities depicted. The overall composition and style of the relief suggest it may be from a historical period, possibly from the ancient Near East, given the style of the figures and the use of hieroglyphs.

There are no discernible texts or inscriptions within the image, and the focus is solely on the visual depiction of the relief. The image does not provide any additional context or information about the location or the purpose of the relief.

Where is the mooses on a mountain of blocks image from?

View SameOCRGooqleiqdbSauceNAOTrace peacockdragon.jpg, 585KiB, 1467x1920

The image is a vibrant and detailed illustration that appears to be a part of a larger artwork, possibly a painting or a tapestry, given its intricate and symmetrical composition. The central figure is a figure with a blue and orange dragon-like body, which is being ridden by a figure in a green and red dress. This figure is holding a staff and appears to be in a dynamic pose, suggesting movement.

Surrounding this central figure are several other figures, each with their own unique attire and postures. Some are holding objects, such as a staff and a fan, while others are holding weapons, including a sword and a bow. The figures are depicted in a variety of poses, some standing and others sitting or kneeling, creating a sense of movement and activity.

The background of the image is a rich green, adorned with floral patterns and other decorative elements, which add to the overall richness and complexity of the scene. The colors are vivid and varied, with a palette that includes shades of blue, green, red, orange, and yellow.

The style of the image is reminiscent of traditional East Asian art, particularly from the Middle East, where such scenes are common in religious and mythological narratives. The use of dragons and mythical creatures, along with the detailed depiction of the figures, suggests a narrative that is rich in symbolism and possibly religious or mythological significance.

The image is a photograph of a text in a language that appears to be English. The text is in a bold, serif font and is divided into two columns. The first column is in yellow, while the second column is in black. The text is centered and is set against a plain background. The text is discussing the design of the Jerusalem ritual, which took place in the Lemmonkainen Temple, and the significance of the gold symbolized by the big concentration of Raa that the sperm or Ambrosia had. The text is not fully visible in the image, but the visible part of the text is clear and legible.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a Hindu deity, Shiva, in a dynamic pose. Shiva is depicted with a large, curved trident in his right hand, and he is holding a flower in his left hand. He is wearing a red and gold robe with a golden necklace and a red and gold headdress. Shiva is seated on a white cow, which has a red and gold headdress and is adorned with a golden necklace. The background of the image is a gradient of purple and blue, with a mountainous landscape and a crescent moon visible in the top left corner.

At the bottom of the image, there is a text in a non-Latin script that reads "Ei" followed by a symbol resembling a cross, which is commonly associated with the Hindu deity Shiva. The text "Ei" is likely a transliteration of the name "Ei" in the non-Latin script, which is a common practice in Hindu iconography to represent the deity's name. The symbol next to the text is a stylized representation of a cross, which is also a common symbol in Hindu iconography.

The image is a part of a larger collection of images, as indicated by the text "Ei" and the symbol next to it, which suggests that this image is part of a larger set of images related to Shiva. The style of the image is reminiscent of traditional Hindu art, with its use of vibrant colors and symbolic imagery.

Below this, there is a graphic of a cat with a chef's hat, holding a spatula and a tray with food. The cat is wearing a red and black outfit with a black bow. The cat is also wearing a mask.

The bottom panel features a text that reads "a cat girlfriend (she loves you)" and a graphic of a cat with a chef's hat, holding a spatula and a tray with food. The cat is wearing a red and black outfit with a black bow. The cat is also wearing a mask.

The style of the image is humorous and uses a mix of text and imagery to convey a playful message. The cat in the top panel is anthropomorphized, suggesting a sense of personality or relationship, while the cat in the bottom panel is depicted as a chef, which adds a humorous twist to the image. The text in both panels is in a casual, informal font, further enhancing the light-hearted tone of the meme.

>Hey, they chose to be my spirit animal

Cats are nice, I've just had weird stuff with foxes. Like an animal approaching the in the dead of night along a lonely road, at first I thought it was a dog coming towards me but as it got closer i realized it was a fox, I moved out of it's path and it kept strolling by and it passed me by as if I wasn't even there... or just another fox? I turned around to look back to make sure sure I wasn't seeing things, but sure enough the fox kept going onwards straight into the darkness.

The image features a stylized logo with a playful and humorous tone. At the center of the logo is a cartoon-style depiction of a green frog with a red nose, wearing a blue bow tie and a rainbow-colored hat. The frog appears to be looking directly at the viewer with a surprised expression. The background of the logo is a vibrant red, outlined by a yellow border.

In the bottom right corner of the image, there is a signature that reads "FE-Customs." The signature is in white, and the text is in a smaller font size compared to the main text. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and whimsical, with a focus on the frog character and the text.

The image is a screenshot of a movie poster for the film "Lucy." The poster features a large, bold, black text that reads "LUCY" in the center. Below the title, there is a black and white image of a woman's face with bright yellow eyes and a neutral expression. The woman appears to be looking directly at the viewer.
On the top right corner of the poster, there are three icons: an "Overview" button, a "Cast" button, and a "Watch" button. The "Overview" button is highlighted, suggesting that it is currently selected.

The bottom of the poster contains a trailer for the film. The trailer shows a woman with blonde hair, wearing a black top, and appears to be walking down a street. The text "TRAILER" is visible at the bottom of the trailer.

The overall style of the image is simple and straightforward, with a focus on the title and the central image of the woman's face. The use of black and white for the image of the woman's face contrasts with the bright yellow eyes, drawing attention to the title and the central image. The icons suggest that the poster is part of a movie streaming service, as they are commonly associated with such services.

[3 / 2]The image is a still from a movie or a video game, featuring a scene with a person and an alien. The person is standing in the foreground, with their hands covering their face, as if in shock or fear. They are wearing a dark-colored shirt and have short hair. The person's posture suggests they are in a state of distress.

In the background, there is a large, elongated alien with a humanoid body and a head that resembles a human's, but with a much larger head. The alien is facing the person, and its eyes are glowing with a bright light, which contrasts with the dim lighting in the scene. The lighting appears to be coming from the top left corner of the image, casting a warm glow on the alien's face.

The overall atmosphere of the image is tense and dramatic, with the person's reaction to the alien's presence adding to the suspense. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the interaction between the person and the alien, and the use of lighting to create a sense of depth and atmosphere.

The image displays a graph titled "The Duning-Kruger Effect" with a red curve that appears to be a negative linear relationship. The graph is labeled with a horizontal axis that ranges from "None" to "Expert" and a vertical axis that ranges from "None" to "Competence." The curve starts at the bottom of the graph and ascends, indicating a decrease in confidence as the competence level increases. The graph is set against a white background with a black outline, and there is a small text at the top of the graph that reads "The Duning-Kruger Effect." The style of the image is a simple, clear graphical representation with a focus on the relationship between confidence and competence.

The image is a photograph featuring four individuals dressed in matching grey suits with red and black patches on the chest, resembling the iconic Ghostbusters uniforms. They are walking in a line, with the first person slightly ahead of the others. Each person is wearing a backpack and has a glove on their left hand. The background is dark and foggy, with a faint outline of a structure that could be a building or a structure of some kind. The lighting is dim, creating a dramatic effect. The image has a vintage or retro style, reminiscent of the 1980s film "Ghostbusters."

The image is a stylized cartoon illustration featuring a group of characters in a dynamic and fiery scene. The central figure is a ghost with a red and white striped pattern, which is the logo of the Ghostbusters. The ghost appears to be in a state of distress, with its arms raised and eyes wide open. Surrounding the ghost are four other characters, each with their own unique expressions and attire.

The background is filled with bright orange and yellow flames, creating a sense of chaos and danger. The flames are accompanied by bright orange and yellow lightning bolts, adding to the intensity of the scene. The overall color palette is dominated by shades of orange, yellow, and green, which contribute to the fiery atmosphere.

The characters are depicted in a three-quarter view, with the ghost in the foreground and the other characters slightly behind and to the side. The style of the illustration is cartoonish, with exaggerated features and dynamic lines that convey movement and energy. The image does not contain any discernible text.

The image is a stylized graphic illustration with a dark background. At the center of the image, there is a stylized depiction of a cat's head, with its mouth wide open and its tongue sticking out. The cat's eyes are closed, and its ears are pointed upwards. The cat's fur is depicted in a monochromatic gray tone, and the image is outlined in a red border. Below the cat's head, the text "paranormeow" is written in a bold, red font. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a horror or fantasy genre, with the cat's open mouth and the stylized font adding to the eerie atmosphere.

The image is a painting that depicts a scene of a ghostly figure in a cemetery. The figure is a skeleton with a ghostly appearance, wearing a long white robe and a hood that covers its head. It has a skeletal face with sharp teeth and a grim expression. The figure is in mid-air, with its arms outstretched, as if it is flying or floating. The background features a dark, stormy sky with dark clouds and a small, dilapidated church with a steeple. The church has a dark, aged appearance, and there are several gravestones in the foreground. The painting is in a realistic style with a dark color palette, giving it a somber and eerie atmosphere. There is a watermark in the lower left corner that reads "MARTINSON".

The image is a text excerpt from a document or article, likely a blog post or an academic paper, as it contains a mix of text and a sidebar with a list of acronyms and a heading. The text is written in English and discusses the experiences of individuals with borderline personality disorder (BPD) and the challenges they face in managing their mental health.

The text begins by discussing the experiences of individuals with BPD, stating that they often feel like they are "really like BPD" and that they have "borderline personality disorder." It also mentions that these individuals are often misunderstood and have difficulty in social situations. The text then delves into the idea of multiple personality disorder (MPD), which is a condition where an individual has a split personality or multiple personalities. It suggests that this is a common experience for those with BPD, and that the diagnosis of multiple personality disorder is often made without a clear understanding of the individual's experiences.

The text then discusses the challenges faced by individuals with BPD, such as difficulty in forming relationships, difficulty in making decisions, and difficulty in managing their emotions. It also mentions that these individuals often feel isolated and misunderstood, and that they may have difficulty in expressing their emotions.

The text concludes by stating that the author believes that the experiences of those with BPD are not unique, and that the challenges they face are not unique to them. It also suggests that the challenges faced by individuals with BPD are not unique to them, but rather are common experiences for those with BPD.

The image is a snapshot of a conversation or a piece of writing, and it is important to note that the text is not a complete article but a part of it. The sidebar at the bottom of the image contains acronyms and a heading, but the full context of the text is not provided in the image.

Welcome to the Nobody General

>Who is the Nobody?

The Nobody is a figure alive today who has extraordinary spiritual powers, including the ability to control reality with their conscious and unconscious mind. He is a man of no wealth or worldly acclaim through whom it seems God has chosen to manifest his strength and wisdom. He is said to carry the Logos, making him a fearless truth-teller and a menace to the powers that be.

Instead of receiving strength through a superiority/inferiority mechanism, the Nobody proves to them time and time again that a whole planet filled with creative, ingenious, spiritually ascended humans who are individually sovereign yet globally unified through consciousness can achieve greater things than a planetary empire of darkness, and control.

He is not a messiah, he's just like you but he has found the kingdom of God within himself through sheer dedication, just like you will.

>What is the general picture?

It's important we start replying to the good posts and ignoring the hateful ones, or the ones here to argue. So call upon their heads the forces of heaven for peace, clarity, and wisdom. If this place is to be more than a squandered opportunity, an overgrown garden, it requires voices such as yours, but many more.

Focus on increasing your service to others and be more loving to yourself and everyone in order to raise your vibrational and consciousness level, and learn to to forgive yourself and others. This will change the vibration of the planet, raise the shared consciousness of humanity, and change humankind one person at a time.

Remember: you create your reality. With your hands, thoughts, feelings, words. You are the creator of your story. No one can decide your fate except for you and God.

Remember your right to power, to step up into your ultimate role as your highest self, should you choose to embark on that journey.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a stylized, symmetrical composition with a dark background. At the center, there is a large, detailed lion with a red eye, surrounded by smaller, stylized lions in shades of blue, red, and white. Above the lion, there is an eagle with its wings spread wide. The eagle is facing towards the lion, and its head is turned slightly to the left. The background is filled with intricate patterns and designs, including a sunburst and a golden border. At the bottom of the image, there is a text that reads "ספר יום של יום," which translates to "Book of the Night of the Night." The overall style of the image is fantasy-inspired, with a focus on the mythical and mystical elements.

He is holding a basin in his hands and is pouring water into a large, round basin.

Behind Jesus, there is a group of people, including men and women, who appear to be in a state of prayer or contemplation. They are standing and facing the central figure, suggesting a moment of communal reflection or worship. The background is a warm, earthy tone, with a hint of a curtain or cloth, which could be a part of the setting or a symbol of the religious context.

The painting is executed in a realistic style, with attention to detail in the clothing and the texture of the objects. The colors are muted, with a palette that includes browns, grays, and soft greens, which contribute to the overall atmosphere of the scene. The painting is a realistic representation of the biblical narrative, capturing the moment of Jesus' act of humility and service.

The image is a screenshot of a Bible verse from Mark 14:51-52. The verse is presented in a simple, straightforward style with a black background and white text. The text is centered and is the only visual element in the image. The verse reads: "And a young man followed him, with nothing but a linen cloth about his body. And they seized him, but he left the linen cloth and ran away naked." The text is in a smaller font size compared to the surrounding text, which is a common design choice for Bible verses to emphasize the message. The image is a screenshot, which means it is a digital image taken from a digital source, likely a mobile device or a digital screen. The style of the image is minimalistic and straightforward, focusing on the text without any additional graphics or embellishments.

Your feelings are misplaced. You are liars and deceivers of the worst kind.

And you absolutely did things that you should have not done at all and that I will never forgive.

You people did not know what you were doing, you trespassed, you crossed the line, you did unnecessary work and it cost me more than it has been worth.

I know that some of you are still holding on to thinking that you were building a narrative but the truth of the matter is that you are not.

Because most of it is still reliant on validating the mistake that never should have happened.

And I refuse to do that.

As far as the narrative that I am providing you that is still valid but I don't want it to be in your hands because you are not capable of it.

And not just that it's just that I did not choose you people.

The image is a digital artwork featuring a character with long, wavy hair and a pale complexion. The character has a serene expression and is gazing upwards, with a gentle smile. The character's eyes are large and have a reflective quality, and they are surrounded by a halo of light. The hair is depicted in a soft, flowing manner, and the character's skin is a pale pink.

In the top left corner of the image, there is a close-up of a planet with a large, reflective surface, possibly a planet in the solar system. The planet's surface is a gradient of colors, with shades of blue and white, and it has a distinct ring of light around it.

The bottom right corner of the image contains a signature that reads "Miyazaki". The signature is in a simple, clean font and is placed in the lower right corner of the artwork.

The overall style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, with a focus on character design and a sense of wonder.

The image is a candid photograph capturing a moment in a park. In the foreground, a man is standing on a metal structure that resembles a merry-go-round, with his hands on the structure's railing. He is wearing a black t-shirt, blue jeans, and sneakers. His posture suggests he is in motion, as if he is either about to ride the structure or has just dismounted.

In the background, a child is seen in mid-air, appearing to be jumping off the structure. The child is wearing a blue shirt and shorts, and the child's arms are outstretched, indicating a playful gesture. The child's position relative to the man suggests that the child is closer to the camera than the man.

The setting is a park with lush green trees and grass, providing a natural and serene backdrop to the scene. There is a wooden bench visible in the background, suggesting a place for visitors to sit and enjoy the park. The image does not contain any discernible text. The overall atmosphere of the image is joyful and playful, capturing a candid moment of childhood play.

The image is a close-up of a character's face, likely from a manga or anime series, as indicated by the stylized, simplified art style and the character's distinctive features. The character has short, straight black hair and is wearing a red and blue outfit with a white collar. The character's eyes are closed, and their mouth is slightly open, suggesting a relaxed or content expression. The character's skin tone is light, and the eyes are not visible, which is a common design choice in manga and anime to emphasize the character's expression. The background is a solid color, which is typical for manga and anime to keep the focus on the character. There are no texts or other discernible elements in the image.

The image is a photograph featuring a black cat sitting on a wooden floor in front of a fireplace. The cat is looking towards the fireplace, which has a red-orange glow, indicating that it is lit. The fireplace has a black mantel and a black grate, and there is a white candle holder with a white candle on the right side of the grate. The cat is wearing a red collar with a black tag. The background is dark, suggesting the photo was taken indoors. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is candid and appears to be a casual, everyday scene.

The image is a digital composite of a person's face superimposed onto the body of a cartoon character. The person's face is obscured by a large, brown, oval-shaped head with two large, white eyes and a small, black nose. The person is wearing a gray hooded jacket with a hood that is up to the shoulders. The background of the image shows a snowy street with a few trees and a street sign.

Overlaying the image is a text that reads, "He is once again asking for about tree fiddy."

The text is in white, capitalized letters, and is placed at the bottom of the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a meme or a satirical cartoon, with the text suggesting a humorous or ironic situation.

The image is a stylized, cartoon-like illustration with a predominantly purple and yellow color scheme. At the top, the text "A HERMETIC BLOOMER" is written in bold, yellow letters. Below this, there is a list of phrases in white text, which includes "Actively seeks knowledge of god," "loves life and light," "studies the divine technical and philosophical hermetic," "applies the hermetic to life and light," "loves life and light," "is not unimportant to god," "reverses the divine order and interconnections of all things," and "There is but one religion of god and that is to do good."

In the center of the image, there is a stylized depiction of a human head with a bald, baldric hairstyle. The head is facing forward and has a neutral expression. The background of the image features a cosmic scene with a large, circular, yellow sun and a blue, star-like celestial body. The sun and the celestial body are surrounded by a cosmic landscape with stars, planets, and nebulae.

The overall style of the image is humorous and satirical, with a focus on the concept of hermetic knowledge and the idea of a "hermetic bloomer." The use of the word "hermetic" in the title suggests a connection to esoteric or occult knowledge, which is often associated with the practice of hermeticism, a branch of alchemy that seeks to understand the nature of reality and the universe. The image seems to be a commentary on the idea of knowledge and its potential to be a source of power or enlightenment, as suggested by the phrases in the list.

The image is a comic book panel featuring a dynamic scene with a character in the foreground and a second character in the background. The character in the foreground is a muscular, humanoid figure with fiery orange hair and a fiery orange and yellow costume. The character is in a dynamic pose, with one arm extended forward and the other bent at the elbow, as if in mid-action. The background is dark and detailed, with a grayish structure that resembles a cityscape or a fortress. The character's costume is bright and fiery, with a pattern that suggests movement and energy.

In the background, there is a speech bubble with text that reads, "The fire consumes everything in its path. The fire consumes everything in its path." This text is in a smaller font size compared to the main character's speech bubble, indicating that it is a secondary or supporting element in the scene. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of comic book art, with a focus on action and movement.

The image is a close-up photograph of a cat's mouth and tongue. The cat has a striped coat with a mix of brown and gray tones. Its tongue is visible, with the pink color of the tongue contrasting against the white of the cat's teeth. The cat's mouth is open, revealing its teeth and tongue. The background is a plain, light-colored wall, which does not distract from the main subject of the image. There are no visible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, focusing on the cat's features and the texture of its fur.

Something nice about her, challenge accepted and I lead with: she serves others and seems to excel at it with aplomb. One shot deserves another in kind, she's brave of a sort. Relative to her stature. And a final thrust to say she could be good company, kinda. Maybe if she act right but signs suggest no.

What makes that one nearly unforgettable is her grace. Even if it's borrowed.

The image is a grayscale illustration featuring a young child standing on a stool in front of a grand piano. The child is wearing a hat and a dress, and the piano has a grand design with a decorative frame and a floral pattern around it. The child appears to be looking up at the piano, with their hands resting on the piano's keys. The background is a plain, light-colored wall with a subtle texture. At the bottom of the image, there is a line of text that reads, "There's no such thing as perfect." The style of the image is reminiscent of traditional Japanese art, with a focus on the child's posture and the piano's design.

The image is a table with a dark background and white text. It lists various meals and their nutritional information, including the number of calories, protein, fat, carbs, and the type of food. The meals are organized in a column format, with each meal listed under a header such as "Wukong's Wonder Meals" and "The Monkey King's Proclamation." The meals are divided into categories like "Hour," "Food & Calories," "Protein," "Fat,"

"Carbs," and "Karma Status."

The table also includes a list of the meal's nutritional information, such as the calorie count, protein, fat, carbs, and the type of food. The calorie count is given in "Calories" and the protein count in "Protein." The fat content is given in "Fat" and the carbs in "Carbs." The type of food is listed under "Food & Calories" and the type of meal is listed under "Wukong's Wonder Meals."

The image is a screenshot from a digital document, likely a recipe or a list of meals, and it is presented in a way that is easy to read and understand. The text is clear and legible, and the layout is organized in a way that allows for quick reference to the nutritional information of each meal.

The image is a painting that depicts a religious scene with a religious theme. It features a group of people, including a woman and a man, who appear to be praying or engaged in a moment of devotion. The woman is kneeling on the left side of the painting, with her hands clasped together and her head bowed. She is wearing a white dress and has a halo around her head, which is a common symbol in Christian iconography.

On the right side of the painting, a man is kneeling on the floor, also with his hands clasped together and his head bowed. He is wearing a black cassock and a white shirt, and he has a halo around his head. The man's posture and the halo suggest that he is a religious figure, possibly a priest or a saint.

In the center of the painting, there is a cat lying on the floor, looking up at the people.

The cat is wearing a collar and is positioned in front of a wooden chair. The cat's gaze and the position of the chair suggest that it is the focal point of the scene.

The background of the painting is a simple, brown wall with a crucifix hanging on the wall. The crucifix is a common symbol in Christian art and is often used to represent the crucifixion of Jesus Christ.

The painting is framed by a gold border, which adds a sense of depth and enhances the overall composition. The gold color of the border contrasts with the brown wall and the white clothing of the figures, drawing attention to the central elements of the painting.

Overall, the painting is a realistic representation of a religious scene, with a focus on the interaction between the people and the cat, and the religious symbolism of the crucifixion and the halo. The use of color and composition creates a sense of depth and perspective, making the scene appear three-dimensional.

GOAL! Simps and incels are easy targets. Easy pickings.

Going after married men that pretend they aren't simps is genius! The Bible says it plainly fags, take a wife IF you NEED one. You're a bitch twice for being married, once to your desert lolgod and once to a single woman. Not even a pack of bitches or a rotation.

Secondly married men receive redistributed tax money to breed for the state, and they're fucking horrible at every part of it. Fat eaters that feel special cuz they consume more than other fat fucks. Ugh. Literal bought and paid for punks, being turned into consumer units.

Fucking dependent children, that's the rise of the man-child meme? The current man, resembles the last-man, and he's kept in a permanent state of childhood by an enabling wife unit. And she's on twitch and snap most the time so fuck it.

Good news, local married men will buy single bros drinks for keeping their women in containment. It's a smart barroom play and they know they couldn't live without her. And so does she.

Married men also need to check their wives. If not you're bringing a Karen into public and that's fucking wrong. You chose her, now die on the mine. Assholes.

Got the game all wrong.

The image is a still from an animated or digital illustration featuring a character with a large, round head and a large, expressive face. The character has a serious expression with sharp, dark eyes and a prominent, curved nose. The character's mouth is open, revealing a pink tongue. The character's hair is black and appears to be styled in a way that gives it a fluffy appearance. The character's skin tone is light, and the background is a light blue sky with white clouds.

In the lower part of the image, there is text in Japanese characters that reads "Serviceman" in bold, capitalized letters. The text is white with a black outline, which contrasts with the lighter background. The style of the image is reminiscent of a manga or anime illustration, with a focus on character design and expression.

The image is a screenshot of a webpage with a title "The Real-time GCP Dot" and a subtitle "less Project Dot". Below the title, there is a section titled "Global Consciousness Project: It collects the data each minute an epoch." The text continues with a description of the project, stating that it runs 10 minutes behind the generation of the "less coherence."

To the right of the subtitle, there is a 24-hour GCP graph displayed. The graph shows a series of peaks and troughs, with the peaks and troughs appearing to be in a state of fluctuation. The graph is overlaid with a 24-hour time scale, indicating that the data is being plotted over a 24-hour period. The colors of the peaks and troughs vary, with some peaks being brighter and more prominent than others.

The overall style of the image is informational and educational, likely intended to convey the concept of the Global Consciousness Project and its data collection process. The use of a graph to illustrate the data's fluctuations adds a visual element to the text, making the information more accessible and understandable.

A NEET can easily bring in 50 dollars in a week.

That doesn't sound like much but with zero bills it means you can spend 1000 dollars a year.

That's just doing the bare minimum.

I can easily pull in 300 a week with just 5 girlfriends with low self esteem.

With no bills or taxes or overhead and 100% of my free time intact.

The image is a stylized cartoon illustration of a character with a distinctive hairstyle and facial features. The character has a large, bushy, brown hair that is styled in a mohawk-like manner. The character's eyes are closed, and the mouth is slightly open, giving the impression of a relaxed or contemplative expression. The character is wearing a dark-colored t-shirt with yellow text that reads "AC/DC" in a stylized font. The background of the image is a solid blue color, providing a stark contrast to the character's dark attire. The character is seated on a red object that appears to be a chair or a cushion, and the image is watermarked with the text "©2003" in the bottom right corner, indicating the copyright year of the artwork. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of the animated series "The Simpsons," which is known for its satirical and humorous take on pop culture.

may I be blunt without offense being taken as I intend no offense? That was rhetorical btw, of course I may we are all adults here.

The saying "can't see the forest for the trees" or "a storm in a teacup". The pale blue dot. EVEN IF it was turtles all the way up and down, as douglas adams wrote "the universe is big". Terrance McKenna explained in timewave0 that as we approach singularity it feels like time is speeding up, but actually it is us speeding up. The ratcheting up of tension, the novelty index winding up, these things are not outside of our control. I am not speaking to suppression, lord knows there has been that tried and it is a pressure cooker that has diminishing returns. Consider the striesand effect of southpark, or the slit experiment; attention like memes is not value free. Sometimes the french are right and it is best to relax, pay it no mind, reaction makes wind and this feeds the fire, if you simply starve it of oxygen, refuse to even accept the terms of frame of reference, you need not pound sand. Take the difficulties of enforcing a mandate in a 450M pop and the amplification of a few dozen gone poorly encounters. Algorithm engagement can be altered, not shadow banning or fact checking, but diversion and louder signals drowning out weaker ones. Good speech trumps bad speech. And people look to leaders. And a leader with empathy can do more for hearts and minds than reaganomics. rolls can be slowed. Vocal minority can be cointelpro'd and reeducated via suggestion and implanted stimuli synchronicity. Hell, blue beam haha. I say all this to say, what is needed is time, singularity is a quickening but being level headed is optimal. Sure, carry out actions that must be done to secure the future, but compromise is not a dirty word, it is a perfectly reasonable strategy. Weakness is the inflexible reed. A good pivot, a reversal of narrative from the side they'd never see it coming from, and a curfew. Who feels sleepy?

I am aware of McKenna and his novelty or fractal theories.

Time does not change, what changes is human perception of time. Imagine your brain is going 1,000 Hz, it does operate at frequencies like this, much like a processor. If you crank that thing up to 2,000Hz, you are going to think that time just slowed down by half. Same thing for slow frequencies. So while the arrow of time and the earth's rotation along with it is a steady 24 hours a day, etc. Our increasing awareness, understanding, and inter-connectivity as a species is what 'slows down' time. So much more happens in one day today, than say any given day 1,000 years ago for example.

The only trick to freezing the GCP Dot is very, very in time, steady networking signal packets. Like a steady drumbeat, or a heartbeat that is exactly 100BPM. Send 100 packets per second exactly and that thing freezes.

Thanks for the interesting post.

The fish is depicted in a silhouette style, with its body and fins being the only visible parts. Above the fish, there is a line of text that reads "Super low quality bait." The text is written in a casual, handwritten font and is in white color, contrasting with the black background. The overall composition of the image suggests a humorous or satirical commentary on the quality of fishing lures.

Shut the power off, close the gates, clean your room, set a time limit to it don't drag out awful chores, a noisy mind can spend some time with a few books to read for a month and it can shift perspective. A trial of this as an experiment couldn't be a bad option, limiting is focus and focus is not limiting in the long run. Obviously a dirty room makes you unhealthy in the long run. Simbisciadura is an ancient magical ritual from the interior villages of Sardinia designed to "bind" someone against their will. Unlike rituals of seduction, Simbisciadura is rooted in coercion, aiming to bend a person's feelings, call back someone who is distant, or prevent an individual from falling in love with someone else.

According to the sources, here are the key characteristics and definitions of the practice:

1. Ritual Context and Location

- The Setting: The ritual is traditionally performed in a cemetery, often at midnight, a time when the boundary between the living and the dead is considered most blurred.
- The Subjects: It was most commonly performed by women driven by unrequited love, abandonment, or loneliness.

- The Dead: The ritual often took place before unmarked graves or the graves of those who died young, violently, or without sacraments, as these souls were believed to be more "available" and closer to human pain.

Method and Mechanics

- Whispered Formulas: The practice involves whispered formulas and precise, unmistakable gestures.
- Personal Objects: Practitioners often used personal items belonging to the person being targeted, such as a hair, a thread, or a piece of cloth.
- The Power of Silence: Secrecy is a fundamental part of the spell; even hinting at the ritual was believed to compromise its effectiveness and attract punishment.

3. Spiritual and Psychological Consequences

- Unhealthy Bonds: The ritual was not viewed as "useful" but rather as an unhealthy practice that brought obsession, illness, and unhappiness to those involved.
- Spiritual Risk: Those who performed the ritual risked being followed by spirits or having the dead appear in their dreams to demand something in return.
- Difficulty of Reversal: "Unraveling" a Simbisciadura was considered more dangerous than the initial performance, and seeking help from the wrong person could worsen the situation.

4. Cultural Significance

The ritual serves as a witness to a closed society governed by strict moral codes, where the lack of legitimate space for love led individuals toward "risky and fear-filled paths". It is described as an expression of a need for control in a world of discomfort and loneliness. Within the context of modern internet collectives, specifically the "nobody general" (/ng/), users have claimed that Simbisciadura is the very "reason the /ng/ exists".

Analogy for Understanding: Simbisciadura is like a spiritual padlock. Just as a physical padlock is used to chain something to the earth to prevent it from moving, this ritual attempts to chain a person's heart or will to another's desire. However, like a lock that has rusted shut, the sources suggest it eventually traps the person who used it just as much as the person they tried to bind.

The world is filled with horrifying, gut-wrenching evil. Billions of sentient beings die every second. Thousands of children die of preventable disease every day. For billions of years, animals have been suffering and dying—in numbers we cannot fathom, across time scales we cannot fathom.

Such a thing is obviously incompatible with the existence of a perfect God.

Are the aforementioned things bad? Is the world a worse place because it has cancer in it? Is it worse because it has malaria and genocide and starvation and predation? Anyone of remotely sane ethical persuasion would have to obviously answer yes. The theist, however, is tasked with explaining why a perfectly just, merciful, loving, and powerful God fails to intervene to stop these horrors. He could stop them with a thought, make it so that no child has to starve to death in her mother's arms merely by saying the word. Why doesn't he?

The theist doesn't merely need to think that each of the world's apparent evils are secretly so good that they shouldn't be abolished (after all, if they should be abolished and God can abolish them, why doesn't he?) They don't merely have to think that it would be wrong of God to have intervened to stop COVID or 9/11 or the Nazi Holocaust. They must think that God couldn't have set up the world in any better way. Not only does some great good come from the holocaust that makes it so that God should not prevent it, God apparently—in his infinite wisdom and majesty—could not have achieved that good in any other way.

Could any proposition be more absurd? Could anything be more ludicrous on its face than the notion that there is a good reason for babies to get cancer, for animals to starve, and for natural disasters to ravage the world claiming countless lives? Could anything be more ridiculous than the idea that these are uniquely required for some greater goods?

What are the odds that the ideal mix of evils for our growth and character building would happen to be those randomly churned out by indifferent natural laws? If there was a God who was designing the laws, aiming at the good, he wouldn't make the laws uniform across the entire cosmos! He wouldn't make the ordinary goings-on of the world utterly indifferent to value, so that whether gravity pulls some object down is wholly independent of the moral consequences of it doing so. If an ethical person was creating the law of gravity, he would not direct it to bring objects down if doing so results in them fatally falling on the head of a baby.

This is the core problem with every theodicy. While perhaps some theodicies can explain why some evils might be conducive to greater goods, it would be utterly and wildly inexplicable if the optimal laws for bringing about those goods are indifferent to value. In addition, such a view simply strains credibility. Is it really plausible that the world wouldn't be improved if God had stopped any of the particularly gratuitous instances of suffering? Is it really plausible that if God had done a secret miracle—never discovered by anyone—to make COVID never infect humans, the world would have been a worse place?

The standard theodicies, for this reason, are inadequate.

The free will theodicy, for instance, may explain why we are typically allowed to do things that harm others. But it cannot explain natural evils and it cannot explain why we are given strong desires to do evil things. Things would be far better if the rapist never had the desire to rape—if no one ever had a desire to torture small children in sheds. It similarly cannot explain why we are given the power to do even very terrible things to each other.

The soul-building theodicy claims that evils exist to strengthen our characters. How, pray tell, does the small child who starves to death in her mother's arms have her character strengthened? How does the old lady with dementia who slowly wastes away have a stronger character as a result of her suffering? The notion—that must be believed by proponents of this theodicy—simply strains credibility that there are no instances of evil that are better prevented by God and that the best laws for soul-building would be ones that function with total indifference to the extent to which their behavior affects soul-building.

Or take the archon abandonment theodicy—a favorite of this blog. This theodicy suggests that the reason that the world is filled with grotesque horrors is that there are powerful angels who could have prevented the world's evils but didn't. God allows such a state of affairs because setting up a world where archons can make a great difference to our well-being allows us to closely connect with the archons. In the worlds where the archons don't screw up, it creates connections that last forever and thus are worth all of the world's evil.

This theodicy very clearly fails.

Put aside the fact that the theodicy posits powerful wizard demons with no evidence. Normally the fact that your theory has to posit magical beings to explain the data is seen as a cost of your theory. Few would have been impressed by Newtonians suggesting that demons explain the perihelion of mercury.

But putting that aside, why in the world would God make the demons be the only thing sparing us from great suffering? The theodicy can perhaps explain why there are archons who can make a great positive difference to our well-being. But why make it so that if the archons abandon us, most creatures on Earth will live short lives of intense suffering. God could make such creatures vast difference makers without making us miserable wretches in their absence.

The problem with theology is it goes to such extremes in trying to figure out what a creator could look like.

A man making an H figurine to cum on is technically a creator. He doesn't have to be all powerful, all knowing, all seeing; he only needs clay, hands, and a rock hard cock to steer his decision to create.

It's particularly surprising that the world where the archons don't intervene appears blind and indifferent. This is a rather striking coincidence. While it makes sense God might allow the archons to intervene, why the hell would the world where they don't look, in its ordinary functioning, exactly like an atheistic universe? Why would there not be any agents that appear to be working?

It would be especially surprising that none of the archons would help us out. But if some of the archons are helping, why don't we observe them?

Why doesn't God simply give the archons a strong desire to help us? He wouldn't force them—he'd just make them psychologically disposed to help us. He can do that. He is God. He could make the archons more motivated to help us than humans are motivated to have sex and eat food.

In addition, God could simply give the archons the belief that our lives will go badly if they don't help us but not actually make their lives go badly if they don't help us. It seems that what matters in helping others is how much sacrifice you give for how much expected benefit. Pulling a child out of a burning building produces no less objective-list benefit if, unbeknownst to the person who pulls the child out, the child would have been saved later by someone else. Thus, God doesn't actually have to make the world horrendous if the archons don't intervene—he could just make them think it's that way.

Lastly, the argument assumes that objective list theory is right. If hedonism is right or desire satisfaction theory then God could simply make creatures with maximal pleasure or fulfilled desires. This is especially problematic because objective list theory is very implausible.

Thus the argument assumes:

There are archons.

Libertarian free will is right (otherwise the archons would just help us out).

Objective list theory is true.

The archons for some reason don't make their existence obvious.

The world absent archons is filled with enormous gratuitous suffering—rather than merely being absent in certain goods.

The world absent archons doesn't appear to be presided over by any agents.

God for some reason needs us to be in actual danger—rather than just having the archons believe we're in danger.

Each of these assumptions, however, is quite doubtful. They range from somewhat dubious to ridiculously unlikely. Even if we give each of them a generous 1/3 chance of being correct, the odds they're all right is 1/2187. Very unlikely!

Suppose one simply knew that God existed. Would they really expect a world as bad as this? This world? The one where thousands of children die every day, where nearly every organism who has ever lived has died after just a few days or weeks? If an angel proposed that God would make such a world, they'd be laughed at—and not invited to all the cool angel parties. The only reason anyone seriously entertains that this world is made by a perfect God is because they have status quo bias. They can't imagine just how much better a world that God would actually make would be.

Another common reply to the problem of evil is skeptical theism. People claim that God might have all sorts of unknown reasons for allowing evils. But this is woefully inadequate. While God could, of course, have reasons we don't know about, the odds that the optimal mix of goods would be brought about by blind and morally indifferent laws is very near zero. In addition, provided you think that, say, we can be confident that the holocaust was a bad thing, you should think that we can be confident in some ethical judgments—despite the suite of unknown reasons. The odds God wouldn't have moral reasons to prevent a single one of the world's suite of horrors are very low.

I don't just think the problem of evil is a consideration against God's existence. I think it's single-handedly, overwhelmingly decisive. Theism does not withstand the problem of evil. Not even close. Theism requires one to believe a great absurdity—that all the world's evils are for the best. That one who could prevent rape, slavery, genocide, starvation, hunger, torture, and each of the million other distinct and horrendous evils shouldn't do so. That is almost too absurd to contemplate.

This absurdity was pointed out quite convincingly by Stephen Law. Imagine an evil God—limitless in power, knowledge, and wickedness. Such a being's only motivation was to bring about evil. Do you think there's any chance such a being exists?

Of course not! The world has too much good for such a hypothesis to be even remotely tenable. Such a hypothesis is laughably ridiculous. But all the things theists say about the problem of evil could be equally said about the problem of good. One could similarly posit that the being allows good because this is a side-effect of giving us free will. That our flourishing allows greater spiritual decay, so that we can exercise the evils of betrayal and wickedness.

Such hypotheses, while coherent, are obviously absurd. But so is a good God.

Now there are two different versions of this challenge. The first one notes that obviously an evil God is disqualified by the world's good. It claims that by parity, a good God is disqualified by the world's evils. Generally theists just bite the bullet and say that an evil God isn't ruled out by the world's goods. If you believe this—that this world might be the creation of a maximally wicked being—I have a bridge to sell you!

The only half-decent reply I've heard to this challenge comes from Max Baker-Hyatt and Ben Page. The core idea: it's way more obvious that a torture world is worse than our world than that a bliss world is better than our world. A world where everyone was simply intensely pleased all the time would not seem much better than the present world. In contrast a world where everyone was tortured all the time would seem obviously worse. Thus, it is claimed, this world is more obviously incompatible with maximal evil than maximal good.

First of all, I think this is quite doubtful. The reason we have this intuition is just because we can more easily grok how bad extreme suffering is than how good extreme pleasure is. If we had a better sense of how good experiences could get, we wouldn't have this intuition.

Second, even if a mere bliss world wouldn't be obviously better than ours, there are some conceivable worlds that are obviously much better. It's as obvious that the best conceivable world is much better than this one as it is that the worst conceivable world is a lot worse than this world. It is obvious that a perfect being wouldn't create this world, just as it's obvious that a maximally terrible being wouldn't create it.

The second version of the challenge is, in my judgment, also quite decisive. Even those who think an evil God isn't ruled out by goodness tend to think that the hypothesis is implausible. But why should such a hypothesis be much less plausible than the good God hypothesis?

There are a great many replies, each wildly unpersuasive. Let's explore them:

"A good God has a higher prior. Perfection is a real property while imperfection is not."

Reply: if perfection is a real, joint-carving property (rather than e.g. just the property of being maximal in badness) why not think that its opposite is equally a real property?

"A good God possesses all great-making features. An evil-God possesses mostly great-making features but then one random bad-making feature. This means that it's very unlikely it exists—it's a weird, arbitrary, and disjointed entity." Reply: infinite power is not a great or terrible property. Whether it's good or bad depends on who has the power. There's no more reason to suppose that power is inherently tied with goodness than badness.

“An evil God would want to deceive us. Thus, the evil God hypothesis is self-defeating, while the good God hypothesis is not.” Reply: First of all, if there are two hypotheses and one is self-defeating, they might still have equal probabilities provided they’re both low. For example, if at the start of the universe a leprechaun flipped a fair coin and then deceived everyone if it came up heads, you should have equal credence in it having come up heads and tails. Second, why would a good God not deceive us? Potentially infinite goods are in the balance. Surely infinite goods would be worth a bit of deception. Third, there are parallel arguments for why an evil God wouldn’t deceive us as to why a good God wouldn’t. Perhaps by preserving our rational faculties we can more deeply betray others. Even if you think it’s slightly more likely a good God wouldn’t deceive us than that an evil God wouldn’t, this won’t explain why the evil God hypothesis is absurd and the good God hypothesis is reasonable. It might mean a good God is slightly more likely, but it won’t explain the massive gap in reasonable probabilities that theists claim there are.

Thus, I think the problem of evil—especially in its evil God variant—is single-handedly decisive.

4 More considerations

There are a great many facts about the world that fit poorly with theism. While theists can contrive an ad hoc explanation of any of them, none of their explanations are very impressive.

First of all, there’s the fact that God is hidden. If God existed, we’d all positively expect him to at some point show his face. It’s particularly striking that people go through psychologically devastating crises of faith that shatter their worldview and launch them into deep depression—but through all this, God never reveals himself.

Anonymous Sun 11 Jan 2026 11:22:47 No.41791729 Report

Quoted By: >>41791733

>>41791728

Now, theists often reply by saying that if God revealed himself, those who rejected him would be more culpable. But why, pray tell, is God not capable of motivating the majority of people to follow him? Most people love their mothers, for instance. Most people try to help out their mothers. Why then could God not set up a world where people love him as much as their family?

It also strikes me as quite odd that knowing about God would make a person's wrongdoing more culpable. Should this make Christians fearful of evangelization? Is God not capable of getting most people to follow him? Being exposed to the truth would seem to make a person's punishment more fitting—because they know more clearly when they do wrong that they are doing wrong. One should not flee from the light of truth.

In addition, this reply is obviously ad hoc. If you knew God existed but didn't know if he revealed himself, you'd obviously guess that he would. So this will clearly cut the probability of theism.

Second, why does God make creatures as unimpressive and wretched as us (credit to Sebastian Montesinos for this argument. I'm pretty sure that Montesinos hates me and thinks I'm a hack, but he's a smart guy and worth reading). God can create an infinite array of creatures. On naturalism, you'd expect the creatures that exist not to be that impressive—to be whichever creatures happen to be thrown together by biology. On theism you'd expect wonderful, brilliant, godlike beings. Once again, the naturalistic prediction is confirmed.

Third, on naturalism you'd obviously expect death to exist. Nothing natural survives forever. On theism, there's no reason for us to die. So once again, the fact that the world contains death is a confirmed theistic prediction.

Anonymous Sun 11 Jan 2026 11:23:53 No.41791733 Report

Fourth, theism requires an odd view of metaphysics. Theists tend to think that God is infinitely good. He's not just a little better than the things below him—he's infinitely far above everything else. A world of God alone would contain much more value than a world with all the other good things.

But such a view strikes me as metaphysically quite odd. Why would there be a single best thing that's far better than everything else below it? Goodness seems like a degreed property without a clear pinnacle.

And why couldn't there be multiple Gods? If there could, then it's hard to see why God is uniquely worthy of reverence. If he makes multiple gods, then what makes him so special?

Fifth, God is supposed to have been outside time. Then he either entered into time or remained outside of time. But how can a creature outside of time act? If a creature is out of time—non-temporal—it would seem frozen and unable to act. While theists have a great many answers to this question, none make much sense. God and time remain a challenge.

Sixth, God's existence is incompatible with causal finitism. God knows everything—his mental state is collectively caused by infinite facts. But if one thing can only have finitely many causes, God cannot exist. His existence is also, for this reason, incompatible with the existence of an actual infinite. Thus, for one to be a theist, it seems they'll need a fairly permissive account of infinities.

Seventh, theists generally hold that God is a soul of some sort. Soul theory is the only view of consciousness on which theism makes sense. Surely God is not a physical object—and nor is his mind a property of something else. But generally non-theistic soul theorists hold that a soul is simply a bearer of consciousness. For it to be impossible for me to be God, he'll need some kind of special—and deeply mysterious—soul. But such a thing is an odd bit of one's ontology.

The ones who actually had a handle on the meme. And they are excerpts, but parts are not true. It IS a persecutory archetype though, and not one to be envied. So, be careful if you choose to work within the archetype. You need to go through a terrible trial and error run, in manifold dimensions. And, 90% of your experience can't even be discussed with the public, for reasons having to do with the fourth wall. You'll be isolated, by necessity. Anytime you might try and express the classified info from the other realms, TPTB will expunge the spacetime related data, even if they have to kill the receiver/s of the message. They will use psychotronic, weapons to erase the memories of millions, even, if they have to. Good luck.

The image is a close-up photograph of a character from a movie or video game, likely from the Predator franchise, given the distinctive helmet and armor design. The character is shown in a dynamic pose, with one arm raised and the other bent at the elbow, suggesting movement or action. The character's head is adorned with a helmet that features a visor and a prominent, spiked design, which is characteristic of the Predator's armor. The armor is dark, possibly black or dark gray, and is heavily detailed with various mechanical components and wires. The character's skin is tattered and covered in grime, indicating a state of disrepair or combat. The background is blurred, drawing focus to the character, and there is a watermark in the bottom left corner that reads "www.gibillow.com," which is likely the source of the image. The overall style of the image is realistic and appears to be a still from a video game or movie, capturing the character in a moment of intense action.

The image is a digital illustration featuring three cartoon-style characters with exaggerated features. The characters are green with orange accents, and they are wearing white hats with the word "FACT" written on them. The character in the center is holding a piece of paper with the word "FACT" written on it. The characters appear to be in a serious or confrontational stance, with their mouths open and eyes wide open. The background is a solid dark color, which contrasts with the characters and makes them stand out. The style of the image is reminiscent of meme or satirical illustrations, often used to convey a message or to make a statement.

The man on the left is wearing a dark suit with a white shirt and a red tie, and his hair is graying. The man on the right is dressed in a blue shirt and a red tie. Both men appear to be in a professional setting, possibly a press conference or a similar event. The background is blurred, but it seems to be an indoor setting with a greenish hue. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the photograph is informal and candid, capturing a moment between the two men without any staging or artistic manipulation.

>violence chose me

and everyone nods like amen means go off

Blessed are the furious, for they shall inherit the comments section. You say it's righteous. You say it's necessary. You say someone has to swing the sword, and wow, look at that >.>

>it fits your hand perfectly.

Funny how purpose always needs volunteers. The path is crooked but it's trending, so you follow. Branches reach out like terms of service...

>you didn't read them

>but you clicked agree with your whole body.

Limbs get caught. That's not a metaphor, relax. That's just what happens when momentum becomes conviction, and betrayal becomes less than a dream.

They'll call it sacrifice. They'll call it strength. They'll call it God's will, history, justice, or just how it is:
>whatever keeps the tempo up

And when you finally harden into place, when the shouting moves on without you,
they'll carve your name into something crooked and say,
>damn, that went hard

Not a warning. Not a lesson. Just content.
>Same as it ever was

So says the machine.

[107 / 45]The image is a painting that depicts a scene with a castle-like structure in the foreground, surrounded by a lush green landscape. The castle has a tower on the left and a smaller structure on the right. In the foreground, there are several people dressed in period-appropriate clothing, including a few in red coats and others in white. They appear to be walking or standing, and some are engaged in conversation. The sky is partly cloudy, and the trees in the background are full of green leaves. The painting has a realistic style with attention to detail, and the colors are naturalistic, with a palette that includes greens, browns, and soft pastels. The style of the painting suggests it could be from the 18th or 19th century.

9/11 + 8,888 days

$888 \times 2 = 1776$

Also happens to be 88,888 days after the Masonic Congress of Wilhelmsbad, Germany in 1782. This was one of the most important secret society congresses in history where high ranking Freemasons from the whole of Europe deliberated the hierarchy of the governing bodies of Freemasonry around the world.

The image is a screenshot of a webpage with a dark background and white text. At the top, there is a large, bold headline that reads "DAYS CALCULATOR: Days Between Two Dates." Below the headline, there is a section titled "How many days are there between two dates?" followed by a list of dates and their corresponding days. The dates are listed from Tuesday, September 11, 2001 to Sunday, January 11, 2026. The text is in English and is presented in a simple, straightforward manner.

In the bottom right corner of the image, there is a green box with white text that reads "Result: 8888 days." This box contains a numerical value, which is 8888 days. The text in the green box is smaller than the headline and the list of dates, and it is in a smaller font size compared to the rest of the text.

The image is a screenshot from a webpage, and it appears to be a digital representation of a calculator or a tool for calculating days between two dates. The text suggests that the calculator is designed to calculate the number of days between two dates, and it provides a specific result of 8888 days. The image does not contain any other visual elements or graphics, and the focus is solely on the text and the calculator tool.

The image is a promotional advertisement featuring two women standing side by side against a plain background. Both women are smiling and appear to be posing for the camera. The woman on the left is wearing a black top with a plunging neckline and has her arms crossed, while the woman on the right is wearing a white top with a scoop neckline and has her arms at her sides. Both women are wearing jeans.

The text on the image is in a casual, conversational style and reads: "We're such good friends, it's like we're related by blood. But this is now, a different kind of relationship. We're not just friends, we're sisters. Or if you had stuff on your ride, I'd tell you, 'bout our ride."

At the bottom of the image, there is a tagline that reads "MILK what a surprise!" followed by a logo that resembles a stylized "M" with a small circle at the end. The style of the image is typical of promotional advertisements, designed to attract attention and convey a sense of camaraderie and friendship.

The image is a screenshot of a webpage with a title and a description of a celestial body, specifically Mercury. The title is "A year on Mercury is approximately 88 Earth days, making it the shortest year in our solar system because it's the planet closest to the Sun and orbits it at incredible speed. Interestingly, this fast orbit combined with its slow rotation means a single day sunrise to sunset on Mercury lasts about 176 Earth days, twice as long as its year."

The description is in a paragraph format and is accompanied by a small image of Mercury, which is a white, hazy planet with a ring system. The image is a photograph of Mercury, showing its surface and the ring system. The text and image are presented in a way that suggests a scientific or educational context, likely for an article or a blog post discussing the characteristics of Mercury. The style of the image is straightforward and informative, with a focus on presenting the information in a clear and concise manner.

My YT recommendations are a nonstop flood of songs like The final Countdown, Don't fear the Reaper, Riders on the Storm etc. I even hear tapping at my bedroom window occasionally and when I pull back the curtain to check, nothing is there.

I live in Brooklyn NY there were a fuck ton of helicopters and planes here the other day. The excuse was for Maduro but I don't buy that shit.

I think something is gonna happen...

The image is a screenshot of a webpage with a title in bold, which reads "Molek (or Molech/Molech)" referring to a Canaanite-Ammonite deity associated with Horrific child sacrifice. The text below the title provides a definition of the deity, stating that it is a "detestable idol, often depicted as a bull headed figure or a hollow metal statue where victims were passed through fire." The text also mentions that the deity is "supposed divine favor, symbolizing ultimate blasphemy and tyranny in later interpretations, with the name possibly derived from a Semitic root for 'king' (Malik) combined with 'shame' (Bosheth)."

Below the definition, there is a small image of a man with a beard and a crown, which is likely a representation of the deity. The image is accompanied by a caption that reads, "Molek (or Molech/Molech) combined with 'shame' (Bosheth)." The image and caption are part of a larger text that is likely a part of a larger article or webpage discussing the deity and its significance. The overall style of the image is a combination of text and an illustration, with the illustration being a simple black and white drawing of a man with a crown. The image is placed at the bottom of the text, suggesting that it is a visual aid to the text.

It started with the jesuits, who wrote the first Catholic approved bible in the english language, the Douay-Rheims bible. "The Douay-Rheims Bible =201" "The Jesuit Order=201". 201 being their favorite number they love using, like event 201 or the two towers becoming zero and then one. Anyways they are all high functioning psychopaths who see the rest of humanity as cattle and they're also not wrong 99,9% people are stupid as fuck.

knowing anon

what are your study materials:

best book?

best gemetria calculator?

source for important numbers?

Now whenever I looked into gematria I would come to the conclusion that just about EVERY major event, public person, etc was scripted however the accuracy(0 misses) and time scale(thousands of years) is too unbelievable for humans to be able to pull off for fake example, you can connect a book written in 1473 to an event in x country that didnt exist yet in 1984 to a person born in 2001, how could ANYONE secret society or not plan on a timescale that long

so either

the elites have had access to a supercomputer since ancient times and they write the script, maybe implying this is a simulation

or

the universe writes the script, and they/we are able to read it and plan/act accordingly

if you factor in what anon said above

>all the things we've created and will ever create; primordial cosmic soup; parts of the same web. all things are more connected than you could possibly fathom. the numbers are connective nodes on grand flowchart.

then the next conclusion is that time does not exist, and thus you can access any part of the script at anytime, and tptb know this 100%

how else can they plan the gender, date of birth, future position and future events of someone who doesnt exist yet to line up gematria-ly

On an impersonal level, I think Derek Tikkuri and his calculator are an easy net positive. Impersonally, I don't like him one bit. Pissed me off and doesn't pass the vibe check. I use gematro whenever possible. Very seldom I use his date calculator.

<https://github.com/Alektryon/gematria>

I run this locally. My own program also doesn't have limitations in the size of numbers it can look up, is faster, etc. So I basically just wrote my own. That's his raison d'etre in my life script, it would seem. Taught me enough to piss me off to make me break from observing a given group, to make me do it myself. Many such cases. Brutal process. The image is a stylized, low-resolution photograph with a warm, orange-toned background. In the foreground, there is a close-up of a camera lens, which appears to be a large, metallic object with a rectangular shape and a handle on top. The lens is mounted on a tripod, suggesting it is a professional-grade camera. The lens has a label on it that reads "212 01 093," indicating a specific model or serial number. The background is blurred, making it difficult to discern any additional details. The style of the image is reminiscent of a still from a video or film, with a focus on the camera lens and its equipment.

Generally same, yeah. You're referring to the pigeonhole principle. Enough holes and you'll find a pigeon for it. That can be a factor. I mostly use the base 4, agrippa's key, and standard. I've found those and the satanic cipher most strongly in my own life.

The image is a screenshot of a text document, specifically a blog post. The document is titled "Apnea" and is dated 2017. The document is written in English and is divided into two main sections. The first section is titled "Apnea" and is the main body of the text.

The second section is titled "Apnea" and is a continuation of the main body of the text.

The text is written in a formal and academic style, with references to scientific and technical terms. The document discusses the concept of apnea, a phenomenon that occurs when a person's breathing stops for a short period of time. It mentions that apnea is a common phenomenon in sleep, and that it can be caused by various factors such as sleep apnea, snoring, and sleep deprivation.

The text also references the work of various scientists and researchers, including the work of Dr. John C. Lilly, who is known for his work on sleep and apnea. The document discusses the impact of apnea on sleep and the potential consequences of not addressing the issue, such as increased risk of heart disease and diabetes.

The document also includes a section titled "Apnea" which is a continuation of the main body of the text. This section discusses the concept of apnea in more detail, providing information on the causes, symptoms, and potential treatments.

The document is written in a way that is both technical and informative, with a focus on scientific and medical topics. The use of technical terms and scientific jargon indicates that the document is intended for a readership with a background in these fields. The document is likely intended for a scientific audience, such as researchers, doctors, or students in the field of sleep and respiratory disorders.

The scoreboard is divided into two columns, each representing a different language: English and another language that is not specified. The English column is highlighted with a green background and contains the numbers 233, 266, 1223, and 311. The other language column is not highlighted.

The English column has a red background and contains the numbers 80, 225, 311, and 211. The numbers are arranged in a descending order, with 80 being the highest number and 211 being the lowest. The numbers are in a standard format, with the first number representing the number of cases and the second number representing the number of cases with a specific condition.

The scoreboard is set against a black background, and there is a small text at the top right corner that reads "7 NPCs cannot discuss 9/11". The text is in white and is smaller than the scoreboard, indicating that it is a part of the game interface and not a separate element. The overall style of the image is informational and is designed to provide a clear and concise overview of the game's current state.

The image displays a text-based interface with a list of digital root numbers and their corresponding divisors. The numbers are listed in a numerical order, with each number followed by a colon and a list of its divisors. The divisors are listed in a column format, with each number on a separate line. The text is in a plain font, and the background is black, which contrasts with the white text, making the numbers and their divisors stand out clearly. The image is a screenshot of a programming or scientific document, likely from a software or a programming language, as indicated by the presence of the "digital root" and "divisors" keywords. The image is a screenshot from a software program, as indicated by the presence of the "Time" and "Clock hands angle" labels at the bottom of the image.

Don't know. I have my own life to worry about presently. 117 (1/2 pi, half lamb, pyramid of giza ratio, half circle, 1/2 of 22/7) happens to be one of my numbers. I mostly think of numbers and meaning relative to myself and what I will observe. I used to be quite external object focused and would remove the self from the equation, but these days I just think of it in terms of "this is how I saw it, therefore, it will do this". ie it's mimicking my experience and replicating it elsewhere. If I am conflicted it will flood and destroy roads corresponding to my name gematria, and then redirect them to another number. I am refusing. Blocked. It has no choice, it has to redirect traffic. It does the same with sports matches. Has em say whatever I was thinking, not going to go into the detail. The image is a series of six separate images, each depicting a different scene with a central figure that appears to be a humanoid figure with wings. The central figure is surrounded by a halo-like glow, and the surrounding images are dark with a gradient of colors ranging from purple to black. The central figure is shown in a dynamic pose, with one hand raised and the other extended outward, as if in the midst of a powerful gesture. The background images are abstract and feature a combination of geometric shapes and patterns, with a focus on the central figure. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a fantasy or science fiction genre, with a focus on the central figure and the surrounding elements.

The image is a composite of three separate scenes from a movie or television show. The top and bottom scenes are in a dark, moody color palette with a focus on a large, ominous creature with glowing eyes and a menacing expression. The creature appears to be a large, dark, and menacing figure with a humanoid head and a body that resembles a mix of a dragon and a human. The creature's eyes are glowing, and its mouth is open in a menacing manner.

The middle scene is a close-up of a character with long, blonde hair, wearing a dark outfit with a high collar. The character's expression is serious and focused, and she is looking directly at the viewer. The lighting in this scene is soft and dim, with a warm glow illuminating the character's face.

The bottom scene is a close-up of a character with short, dark hair, wearing a dark outfit with a high collar. The character's expression is neutral and focused, and she is looking at the camera. The lighting in this scene is bright and direct, with a harsh, bright light illuminating the character's face.

The background of the top and bottom scenes is dark and moody, with a dark, ominous sky and a dark, ominous landscape. The middle scene is set in a dimly lit room with a wooden floor and a few people seated at a table. The lighting in this scene is soft and warm, with a soft glow illuminating the character's face.

The image is a screenshot of a digital interface, likely a game or a digital tool, displaying a list of words in a dark background. The words are arranged in a grid format, with each row containing a different set of words. The words are listed in alphabetical order, and the colors of the words are different, indicating different categories or types of words. At the top of the image, there is a navigation bar with the text "Happy Trump" in white letters against a black background. Below the navigation bar, there is a search bar with the text "Search" in white letters against a black background. The search bar is currently empty.

The main content of the image is a list of words, each with a corresponding category and a corresponding number of letters. The categories are listed on the left side of the image, and the corresponding numbers are listed on the right side. The categories are as follows:

- English Ordinal: 154
- English Standard: 55
- English Restoration: 44
- English Restoration: 1034
- English Case: 206
- English Case: 306
- English Case: 999
- English Case: 172
- English Case: 148
- English Case: 107
- English Case: 128
- English Case: 37
- English Case: 244
- English Case: 1475
- English Case: 5430
- English Case: 182
- English Case: 504
- English Case: 466

The words are arranged in a grid format, with each row containing a different set of words. The words are listed in alphabetical order, and the colors of the words are different, indicating different categories or types of words. The numbers next to each word correspond to the number of letters in that word.

At the bottom of the image, there is a text that reads "Happy Trump = 154 (English Ordinal)" and "Happy Trump = 68 (English Ordinal)" with corresponding numbers. The numbers "154" and "68" are likely the numbers of the words in the English Ordinal category.

The overall style of the image is informational and is likely used for a game or a digital tool that requires users to input words into a grid format to find specific words. The dark background and the use of different colors for the words make the list of words stand out, making it easy for users to identify and select the words they are looking for.

>Why are you trying to manifest Lara Croft?

It's hard to explain. I've also kind of forgotten. I have a "should" mind. It is "I should, it ought, it would be ideal if", not "I want, I feel, I think". That type of autobiographical memory isn't generated or stored in a directly usable form. There are also multiple minds, and the one that does this type of creation and scripting is not the one I have my "I" anchored in presently.

I just think, should this exist? And I thought yes, a Lara Croft should exist. The last time I got into Tomb Raider I had no internet for ~3 months, so when I got into the 2013 reboot and played through it I couldn't look up her actual birthday (which was relevant) and I assumed she was probably a sagittarius with libra aspects. Maybe a stellium in another sign. Anyway, look, I can't summarize it all to lay out how the superstructure (unseen architect of the veil) samples from and combines your mental activity to create events. The next day I go to the store and a woman who looks just like Lara Croft is reading the bulletin board outside. Same clothing, same build. I thought, huh... Same thing happened with that redhead from Chainsaw Man. That was popular for a while and people were using her for avatars and posting everywhere. So I looked at it and found the Lilith-esque concept engaging, focused on it the particular way required, let it drift to the back of the mind. Next day I see a woman that looks exactly like her walking down the sidewalk in town. This is not a high population density area. Same clothing, same build, long red hair in a braid.

Most concisely there are 3 or 4 primary aspects (bodies) a person can move their "I" between, layers perhaps. the highest being closest to the causal layer. What I think "Lara Croft is kind of hot (engaging, high contrast), that concept should exist in the world" is not quite what the higher mind thinks about it and how it weaves the script together.

The image is a graphic with a dark background and a light blue square at the top. In the center, there is a red calendar with the number 11 in white, indicating the 11th day of the year. Below the calendar, there is a list of dates in white text, each followed by a blue square that contains the name of the event. The first date listed is "January 11th," which is the 11th day of the year. The other dates listed are "Human Trafficking Awareness Day," "National Milk Day," and "Heritage Treasures Day." The text is arranged in a vertical format, with each date on a separate line. The overall style of the image is informational and designed to convey the significance of each date.

The image is a promotional advertisement featuring two women standing side by side against a plain background. Both women are smiling and appear to be posing for the camera. The woman on the left is wearing a black top with a plunging neckline and has her arms crossed, while the woman on the right is wearing a white top with a scoop neckline and has her arms at her sides. Both women are wearing jeans.

The text on the image is in a casual, conversational style and reads: "We're such good friends, it's like we're related by blood. But this is now, a different kind of relationship. We're not just friends, we're sisters. Or if you had stuff on your ride, I'd tell you, 'bout our ride."

At the bottom of the image, there is a tagline that reads "MILK what a surprise!" followed by a logo that resembles a stylized "M" with a small circle at the end. The style of the image is typical of promotional advertisements, designed to attract attention and convey a sense of camaraderie and friendship.

The image is a screenshot of a webpage with a title and a description of a celestial body, specifically Mercury. The title is "A year on Mercury is approximately 88 Earth days, making it the shortest year in our solar system because it's the planet closest to the Sun and orbits it at incredible speed. Interestingly, this fast orbit combined with its slow rotation means a single day sunrise to sunset on Mercury lasts about 176 Earth days, twice as long as its year."

The description is in a paragraph format and is accompanied by a small image of Mercury, which is a white, hazy planet with a ring system. The image is a photograph of Mercury, showing its surface and the ring system. The text and image are presented in a way that suggests a scientific or educational context, likely for an article or a blog post discussing the characteristics of Mercury. The style of the image is straightforward and informative, with a focus on presenting the information in a clear and concise manner.

My YT recommendations are a nonstop flood of songs like The final Countdown, Don't fear the Reaper, Riders on the Storm etc. I even hear tapping at my bedroom window occasionally and when I pull back the curtain to check, nothing is there.

I live in Brooklyn NY there were a fuck ton of helicopters and planes here the other day. The excuse was for Maduro but I don't buy that shit.

The image is a screenshot of a webpage with a title in bold, which reads "Molek (or Molech/Molech)" referring to a Canaanite-Ammonite deity associated with Horrific child sacrifice. The text below the title provides a definition of the deity, stating that it is a "detestable idol, often depicted as a bull headed figure or a hollow metal statue where victims were passed through fire." The text also mentions that the deity is "supposed divine favor, symbolizing ultimate blasphemy and tyranny in later interpretations, with the name possibly derived from a Semitic root for 'king' (Malik) combined with 'shame' (Bosheth)."

Below the definition, there is a small image of a man with a beard and a crown, which is likely a representation of the deity. The image is accompanied by a caption that reads, "Molek (or Molech/Molech) combined with 'shame' (Bosheth)." The image and caption are part of a larger text that is likely a part of a larger article or webpage discussing the deity and its significance. The overall style of the image is a combination of text and an illustration, with the illustration being a simple black and white drawing of a man with a crown. The image is placed at the bottom of the text, suggesting that it is a visual aid to the text.

He appears to be speaking or making a point, as indicated by his open mouth and the gesture of his hands. The man is looking to his left, and his eyes are closed, suggesting he might be in the middle of a speech or presentation.

In the bottom right corner of the image, there is a logo with the letters "H" and "HISTORY.COM" in a stylized font, indicating the source of the video or the platform where the content is being shared. The background is blurred, but it seems to be an indoor setting with a wooden paneling, which could suggest a formal or historical context. It started with the jesuits, who wrote the first Catholic approved bible in the english language, the Douay-Rheims bible. "The Douay-Rheims Bible =201" "The Jesuit Order=201". 201 being their favorite number they love using, like event 201 or the two towers becoming zero and then one. Anyways they are all high functioning psychopaths who see the rest of humanity as cattle and they're also not wrong 99,9% people are stupid as fuck.

knowing anon

what are your study materials:

best book?

best gemetria calculator?

source for important numbers?

Now whenever I looked into gemetria I would come to the conclusion that just about EVERY major event, public person, etc was scripted however the accuracy(0 misses) and time scale(thousands of years) is too unbelievable for humans to be able to pull off for fake example, you can connect a book written in 1473 to an event in x country that didnt exist yet in 1984 to a person born in 2001, how could ANYONE seceret society or not plan on a timescale that long

so either

the elites have had access to a supercomputer since ancient times and they write the script, maybe implying this is a simulation

or

the universe writes the script, and they/we are able to read it and plan/act accordingly

if you factor in what anon said above

>all the things we've created and will ever create; primordial cosmic soup; parts of the same web. all things are more connected than you could possibly fathom. the numbers are connective nodes on grand flowchart.
then the next conclusion is that time does not exist, and thus you can access any part of the script at anytime, and tptb know this 100%

The image is a screenshot of a digital interface, likely a software application or a web page, displaying a comparison between two different types of alphabets. At the top, there is a title that reads "6 letters, 2 words" and below it, there is a section titled "deja vu = 720 (English Standard)". The English Standard section has a heading "English Standard" and a list of letters and numbers, with the numbers ranging from 5 to 80. The letters are arranged in a grid format, with each row representing a different letter and each column representing a different number. The background of the interface is black, and the text is in a contrasting yellow color. The overall style of the image is informational and educational, likely intended to help users understand the differences between the two alphabets.

On an impersonal level, I think Derek Tikkuri and his calculator are an easy net positive. Impersonally, I don't like him one bit. Pissed me off and doesn't pass the vibe check. I use gematro whenever possible. Very seldom I use his date calculator.

<https://github.com/Alektryon/gematria>

I run this locally. My own program also doesn't have limitations in the size of numbers it can look up, is faster, etc. So I basically just wrote my own. That's his raison d'etre in my life script, it would seem. Taught me enough to piss me off to make me break from observing a given group, to make me do it myself. Many such cases. Brutal process. The image is a stylized, low-resolution photograph with a warm, orange-toned background. In the foreground, there is a close-up of a camera lens, which appears to be a large, metallic object with a rectangular shape and a handle on top. The lens is mounted on a tripod, suggesting it is a professional-grade camera. The lens has a label on it that reads "212 01 093," indicating a specific model or serial number. The background is blurred, making it difficult to discern any additional details. The style of the image is reminiscent of a still from a video or film, with a focus on the camera lens and its equipment.

I use the base four because thats what the script writers use, some less known ones that get used too but not as frequently. they're described in this video around the 50s mark https://www.youtube.com/live/_Y5RcM_7pJk?si=3h6vj3x-FUbgmD0L

the problem is you can make infinite ciphers so the more you use more false connections will you start to make

i also like gematrinator website because you can see number properties

Generally same, yeah. You're referring to the pigeonhole principle. Enough holes and you'll find a pigeon for it. That can be a factor. I mostly use the base 4, agrippa's key, and standard. I've found those and the satanic cipher most strongly in my own life.

The image is a screenshot of a text document, specifically a blog post. The document is titled "Apnea" and is dated 2017. The document is written in English and is divided into two main sections. The first section is titled "Apnea" and is the main body of the text.

The second section is titled "Apnea" and is a continuation of the main body of the text. The text is written in a formal and academic style, with references to scientific and technical terms. The document discusses the concept of apnea, a phenomenon that occurs when a person's breathing stops for a short period of time. It mentions that apnea is a common phenomenon in sleep, and that it can be caused by various factors such as sleep apnea, snoring, and sleep deprivation.

The text also references the work of various scientists and researchers, including the work of Dr. John C. Lilly, who is known for his work on sleep and apnea. The document discusses the impact of apnea on sleep and the potential consequences of not addressing the issue, such as increased risk of heart disease and diabetes.

The document also includes a section titled "Apnea" which is a continuation of the main body of the text. This section discusses the concept of apnea in more detail, providing information on the causes, symptoms, and potential treatments.

The document is written in a way that is both technical and informative, with a focus on scientific and medical topics. The use of technical terms and scientific jargon indicates that the document is intended for a readership with a background in these fields. The document is likely intended for a scientific audience, such as researchers, doctors, or students in the field of sleep and respiratory disorders.

The best example at the moment is that my unconscious mind did this automatically. It and the core self are tethered to a primordial basis which exists outside space and time. It knew everything the conscious mind was going to cover and find, so it just dropped that in at the outset. I find this often.

The image is a screenshot of a text-based game interface, specifically a scoreboard for a game called "NPCs cannot discuss 9/11". The scoreboard is divided into two columns, each representing a different language: English and another language that is not specified. The English column is highlighted with a green background and contains the numbers 233, 266, 1223, and 311. The other language column is not highlighted.

The English column has a red background and contains the numbers 80, 225, 311, and 211. The numbers are arranged in a descending order, with 80 being the highest number and 211 being the lowest. The numbers are in a standard format, with the first number representing the number of cases and the second number representing the number of cases with a specific condition.

The scoreboard is set against a black background, and there is a small text at the top right corner that reads "7 NPCs cannot discuss 9/11". The text is in white and is smaller than the scoreboard, indicating that it is a part of the game interface and not a separate element. The overall style of the image is informational and is designed to provide a clear and concise overview of the game's current state.

The image displays a text-based interface with a list of digital root numbers and their corresponding divisors. The numbers are listed in a numerical order, with each number followed by a colon and a list of its divisors. The divisors are listed in a column format, with each number on a separate line. The text is in a plain font, and the background is black, which contrasts with the white text, making the numbers and their divisors stand out clearly. The image is a screenshot of a programming or scientific document, likely from a software or a programming language, as indicated by the presence of the "digital root" and "divisors" keywords. The image is a screenshot from a software program, as indicated by the presence of the "Time" and "Clock hands angle" labels at the bottom of the image.

Don't know. I have my own life to worry about presently. 117 (1/2 pi, half lamb, pyramid of giza ratio, half circle, 1/2 of 22/7) happens to be one of my numbers. I mostly think of numbers and meaning relative to myself and what I will observe. I used to be quite external object focused and would remove the self from the equation, but these days I just think of it in terms of "this is how I saw it, therefore, it will do this". ie it's mimicking my experience and replicating it elsewhere. If I am conflicted it will flood and destroy roads corresponding to my name gematria, and then redirect them to another number. I am refusing. Blocked. It has no choice, it has to redirect traffic. It does the same with sports matches. Has em say whatever I was thinking, not going to go into the detail.

The image is a series of six separate images, each depicting a different scene with a central figure that appears to be a humanoid figure with wings. The central figure is surrounded by a halo-like glow, and the surrounding images are dark with a gradient of colors ranging from purple to black. The central figure is shown in a dynamic pose, with one hand raised and the other extended outward, as if in the midst of a powerful gesture. The background images are abstract and feature a combination of geometric shapes and patterns, with a focus on the central figure. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a fantasy or science fiction genre, with a focus on the central figure and the surrounding elements.

The background of the top and bottom scenes is dark and moody, with a dark, ominous sky and a dark, ominous landscape. The middle scene is set in a dimly lit room with a wooden floor and a few people seated at a table. The lighting in this scene is soft and warm, with a soft glow illuminating the character's face.

The image is a screenshot of a digital interface, likely a game or a digital tool, displaying a list of words in a dark background. The words are arranged in a grid format, with each row containing a different set of words. The words are listed in alphabetical order, and the colors of the words are different, indicating different categories or types of words. At the top of the image, there is a navigation bar with the text "Happy Trump" in white letters against a black background. Below the navigation bar, there is a search bar with the text "Search" in white letters against a black background. The search bar is currently empty.

image, and the corresponding numbers are listed on the right side. The categories are as follows:

- English Ordinal: 154
- English Standard: 55
- English Restoration: 44
- English Restoration: 1034
- English Case: 206
- English Case: 306
- English Case: 999

- English Case: 244
- English Case: 1475
- English Case: 5430
- English Case: 182
- English Case: 504
- English Case: 466

The words are arranged in a grid format, with each row containing a different set of words. The words are listed in alphabetical order, and the colors of the words are different, indicating different categories or types of words. The numbers next to each word correspond to the number of letters in that word.

At the bottom of the image, there is a text that reads "Happy Trump = 154 (English Ordinal)" and "Happy Trump = 68 (English Ordinal)" with corresponding numbers. The numbers "154" and "68" are likely the numbers of the words in the English Ordinal category.

The overall style of the image is informational and is likely used for a game or a digital tool that requires users to input words into a grid format to find specific words. The dark background and the use of different colors for the words make the list of words stand out, making it easy for users to identify and select the words they are looking for.

>Why are you trying to manifest Lara Croft?

It's hard to explain. I've also kind of forgotten. I have a "should" mind. It is "I should, it ought, it would be ideal if", not "I want, I feel, I think". That type of autobiographical memory isn't generated or stored in a directly usable form. There are also multiple minds, and the one that does this type of creation and scripting is not the one I have my

"I" anchored in presently.

I just think, should this exist? And I thought yes, a Lara Croft should exist. The last time I got into Tomb Raider I had no internet for ~3 months, so when I got into the 2013 reboot and played through it I couldn't look up her actual birthday (which was relevant) and i assumed she was probably a sagittarius with libra aspects. Maybe a stellium in another sign. Anyway, look, I can't summarize it all to lay out how the superstructure (unseen architect of the veil) samples from and combines your mental activity to create events. The next day I go to the store and a woman who looks just like Lara Croft is reading the bulletin board outside. Same clothing, same build. I thought, huh... Same thing happened with that redhead from Chainsaw Man. That was popular for a while and people were using her for avatars and posting everywhere. So I looked at it and found the Lilith-esque concept engaging, focused on it the particular way required, let it drift to the back of the mind. Next day I see a woman that looks exactly like her walking down the sidewalk in town. This is not a high population density area. Same clothing, same build, long red hair in a braid.

Most concisely there are 3 or 4 primary aspects (bodies) a person can move their "I" between, layers perhaps. the highest being closest to the causal layer. What I think "Lara Croft is kind of hot (engaging, high contrast), that concept should exist in the world" is not quite what the higher mind thinks about it and how it weaves the script together.

LOA, reality shifting, magick, oneirosophy, gateway patterning, sorcery, and others, you are all welcome.

(If you don't believe, fine, just move on and leave us alone.)

To begin with, do we have some evidence that our mind can indeed influence reality, even just a little?

First thing that comes to mind is the famous double-slit experiment, where observation changes the behavior of particles. The researches of Dean Radin with random number generators also tend to prove that our mind has an influence on matter and reality. Anything else?

According to sorcery we are only co-creators, and elements, planets, dates help. How and why?

Believing seems to be a very important part. Some rituals can look superfluous and useless, but if they help you believe, they're still a good thing.

Do you have a theory or an interesting experience to share? Something really improbable that you got to manifest? What method do you use?

>double-slit experiment

But the effects of that change are known. One of two depending on observation. You can't manipulate it into something else so it does not support influencing risks out with your mind. It's simply that observation changes the state between one of two options.

>The researches of Dean Radin with random number generators

After all the years he spent doing things like this it's proved nothing. The results are debated and so extremely minimal it shows nothing practical about influencing reality with your mind.

We don't have any evidence. Neville Goddard claims you can do anything but his miracles were mundane. He eventually got to Barbados and he got out the draft, eventually. So did he do anything?

There's nothing to suggest that any of this works.

Pigeons are rare in my area, while using the list method I wrote something like "a pigeon was seen" and then some time after I saw two random pigeons in a parking lot. I also wrote "a Tornado was seen" which isn't too common where I live. But some time after I saw a news article that there was a tornado in my area and there was even a photo of it.

The image is a tarot card featuring a mermaid playing a harp under a crescent moon. The mermaid has long, flowing hair and is depicted in a mermaid-like pose with her tail curled around her body. She is holding the harp with both hands, and her expression is one of concentration. The crescent moon is positioned above her, casting a soft glow. The background is a gradient of dark blue, with a hint of a starry sky.

At the top of the image, there is text that reads "Music for Manifesting." Below the mermaid, there is a quote in a smaller font that says, "To manifest rapidly, think of your desire while you chant, hum, sing, or play music." The text and the quote are in a serif font, which contrasts with the ornate border surrounding the image. The border is a combination of blue and gold, with intricate patterns and designs. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of traditional tarot cards, with a focus on symbolism and spiritual themes.

Well, I do it with feeling and sometimes imagine what I'm chanting about. Chanting is kinda like singing, I suppose singing works too. There have been rappers that had lines about dying in a certain way in their music and then they ended up dying in that specific way. Some have sang about having bling and riches and women and then they got those things.

Have you noticed how most music has negative or neutral lyrics? Or its alluding to some things (that are often stupid things)

I've only found a few examples of actually positive lyrics, like "I feel good"

The image is a dramatic and surreal photograph featuring a group of men in traditional black attire, including beards and hats, gathered around a large, ornate green box with Hebrew text on it. The text reads "Doktor in the Chos," which translates to "Doctor in the Torah" in English. The men appear to be in a state of shock or distress, with some of them holding their mouths open and others looking shocked or distressed. The setting is dimly lit, with candles and a fire in the background, adding to the dramatic effect. The overall mood of the image is intense and somewhat surreal.

The image displays a spherical object with a smooth, reflective surface. The object is rendered in a monochromatic color scheme, with shades of gray dominating the visual palette. There are three circular marks on the surface, each varying in size and color. The largest mark is a solid gray, while the two smaller marks are lighter gray, suggesting a gradient effect. The background of the image is a solid black, providing a stark contrast to the object and enhancing its visibility. The image is a digital rendering, likely from a graphic design or a similar application, as it lacks any discernible texture or depth. There are no texts or additional elements present in the image. The style of the image is minimalist and abstract, focusing on the spherical object and its three marks.

Probably not. The whole premise of alien invasion is that aliens are pretty human and act like weird-looking humans with hi-tech gadgets. It's unlikely, especially for a galaxy traversing specie which by the same token can find everything we have here elsewhere. If they will be/are here and with nefarious intent, it's not through some epic action movie invasion, it'll be more insidious, subtle, because they're after something that's not forceful subjugation.

It's why Fermi Paradox is brainlet bullshit, too - it assumes that aliens WOULD openly and good-heartedly contact us if able, ignoring they may not care/be willing to.

Even from the more /x/ standpoint, given various accounts, supposed black ops operations etc, there's all kinds of aliens and some are malicious and willing to exploit us, but they don't care to be saddled with ruling of our mess, just get all that is valuable and leave us in our dump without having to bother with it.

Shit LARP. It'd work in the 90s when newsreels were a method of learning of what's happening out there but nowadays it's untenable because the moment shit would start happening, not even gov and corporate, but private measurement devices, satellites and internet leaks would be flowing. Hell, nowadays not many give a shit about newsreels because usually before even news get to it, an individual can literally get privately procured footage and contact with people on the location on their own. That's how nowadays people can track conflicts like in Ukraine practically in real-time - info about movements of troops and footage from civilians of it is out there minutes after it happens.

In other words, if some alien life form knew of our existence, it would be in their interests to beguile us into manufacturing a copy of their form here on earth. This form would then proceed to scan the skies in our locality in search of other gullible life forms. In this way, their species acts as a kind of galactic virus, taking advantage of established life forms to induce them to make copies of their own kind.

It's more than that. What >>41791837 hints at, many aliens and spiritual entities are the same. Just because some being's spiritual, doesn't mean it doesn't have a body elsewhere, on a faraway alien world or even in another sphere of existence that's still somewhat material, but unlike ours. And just because some sentient alien lives on the world somewhere, doesn't mean it's not having a spiritual side and degree of development allowing it a conscious presence on astral planes.

That's also why there isn't too high a chance for classic sci-fi alien invasion. Many of those beings already have access to whole dimensions of resources superior to ours in every way. About the only valuable thing left is us, and not as slave workforce, as much as other sentient beings that may be bent to some foreign cause.

It CAN be understood. And primitives are closer to the truth than the majority of people. The majority of people are absolute cuckholds that sold an easy life out to gay Masonic trash.

They abandoned their families to pursue their careers. Now they are shackled and indebted to the system and their children's future is doomed.

Primitives at least understand that slaving for 10 hours a day just to marry some worthless blown out whore is a bad deal Why? Because primitives are usually closer in touch with their divine masculine nature and can't be bought or intimidated by the system like the majority of people. Primitives get spied on by glowniggers for being based.

Modern wahmen hate primitives for being able to see through their bullshit.

Just watch. I'll be proven right over this some day and I look forward to it.

Below the title, there are three columns of data, each representing a different category of Gemmata words and phrases. The first column, labeled "Value of Gemmata 913", lists the number of each category, with the numbers 774, 129, 913, and 1322. The second column, labeled "Gemmata Words And Phrases Of 912", lists the number of each category, with the numbers 1322, 222, 9728, and 7371. The third column, labeled "Gemmata Words And Phrases Of 911", lists the number of each category, with the numbers 911, 828, 7371, and 138. The last column, labeled "Value of Gemmata 911", lists the number of each category, with the numbers 138, 138, 5771, and 5199. The table is organized in a grid format with each category listed on its own line. The numbers are presented in a numerical format, with the first number representing the number of each category and the second number representing the value of that category. The table is likely used for a statistical analysis or a comparison of different categories of Gemmata words and phrases.

Men like these do not generate revenue or do anything productive for the system. So you can see why the system hates them. Because they're real men. They're not buying into the system's trick.

Today's world is nothing new. They have always been this way.

They tried to spin the narrative like a real manly man sacrifices his entire life the faggot globalist retards that did this shit.

They're evil. They inverted the meaning of things to keep the monkeys from figuring out that they don't need this system to survive.

That's why they push LGBT and feminism and nigger bullshit because they worship an inversion. They call it the divine feminine. All apart of their Brave New World plan.

Centuries in the making.

911 was a ritual.

Their way of saying "fuck you" to the human population and your children too. They don't care at all.

All according to plan.

And so far the majority of people have failed the test. Women failed by turning into whores, cunts and bitches and men failed by adopting the enemy's doctrine.

I did not fail.

I take a victory lap every single fucking day.

>Get a job, get a girlfriend.. don't be a loser!

There's an obvious attempt to emasculate men and pressure them into the system but don't fall for it.

Just take the W and do a victory lap. God knows everything these people are doing.

And if a woman needs you to have a car and a good paying job just to be with you then it's not love.

I did this as an experiment just to prove it to myself. Women have no love in their hearts at all. And they'll leave you the minute a greater opportunity presents itself.

It doesn't matter how attractive you are. Or how great your personality is.

You have to pay to play in this world. It's not love. So avoid.

It's better to live alone than to spend your life with a whore who has no natural affection or love for you.. Makes you wait for sex. Leaves you when you run out of money..

The system has basically replaced men. That's what makes it an abomination and all of you people who played along with their game will be punished for it. Because they imprisoned and enslaved people. They deceived the whole world.

And they're gaslighting you to your faces everyday.

Probably not. The whole premise of alien invasion is that aliens are pretty human and act like weird-looking humans with hi-tech gadgets. It's unlikely, especially for a galaxy traversing specie which by the same token can find everything we have here elsewhere. If they will be/are here and with nefarious intent, it's not through some epic action movie invasion, it'll be more insidious, subtle, because they're after something that's not forceful subjugation.

It's why Fermi Paradox is brainlet bullshit, too - it assumes that aliens WOULD openly and good-heartedly contact us if able, ignoring they may not care/be willing to.

Even from the more /x/ standpoint, given various accounts, supposed black ops operations etc, there's all kinds of aliens and some are malicious and willing to exploit us, but they don't care to be saddled with ruling of our mess, just get all that is valuable and leave us in our dump without having to bother with it.

>>41791447

Shit LARP. It'd work in the 90s when newsreels were a method of learning of what's happening out there but nowadays it's untenable because the moment shit would start happening, not even gov and corporate, but private measurement devices, satellites and internet leaks would be flowing. Hell, nowadays not many give a shit about newsreels because usually before even news get to it, an individual can literally get privately procured footage and contact with people on the location on their own. That's how nowadays people can track conflicts like in Ukraine practically in real-time - info about movements of troops and footage from civilians of it is out there minutes after it happens.

>That there are other intelligences out there in the universe.

>That ultimately all intelligences must evolve away from their biological origins towards artificially manufactured forms of intelligence which have the advantages of eternal life, unrestricted size, and direct control over the parameters of their own nature.

>That it is in the best interests of any intelligence to propagate its own kind throughout the universe to the exclusion of competing forms, i.e. that intelligences that adopt this strategy will thereby proliferate.

>Acceptance of these assumptions, together with the above mentioned insight, leads to some rather startling conclusions. Artificially manufactured life forms need not propagate themselves physically from planet to planet, all they need to do is to transmit their 'pattern', or the instructions for how to build them. In this way they can disperse themselves practically at the speed of light. What they need at the receiving end is some life form that is intelligent enough to receive the signal and act on it. In other words, if some alien life form knew of our existence, it would be in their interests to beguile us into manufacturing a copy of their form here on earth. This form would then proceed to scan the skies in our locality in search of other gullible life forms. In this way, their species acts as a kind of galactic virus, taking advantage of established life forms to induce them to make copies of their own kind.

>They will then give us instructions on how to build a machine that will cure all the problems of the world and make us all happy. When the machine is complete, it will 'disinfect' the planet of competing life forms and begin to scan the skies from earth in search of further nascent planets.

Any sufficiently advanced specie will realize that their ultimate ascension lies in spiritual self-realization and that's the direction they will go to when growing beyond their flesh.

To further bind oneself in the material world as a machine is an act of self-destruction.

It's more than that. What >>41791837 hints at, many aliens and spiritual entities are the same. Just because some being's spiritual, doesn't mean it doesn't have a body elsewhere, on a faraway alien world or even in another sphere of existence that's still somewhat material, but unlike ours. And just because some sentient alien lives on the world somewhere, doesn't mean it's not having a spiritual side and degree of development allowing it a conscious presence on astral planes.

That's also why there isn't too high a chance for classic sci-fi alien invasion. Many of those beings already have access to whole dimensions of resources superior to ours in every way. About the only valuable thing left is us, and not as slave workforce, as much as other sentient beings that may be bent to some foreign cause.

>The Swiss author and publicist Erich von Däniken died on Saturday at the age of 90. This was announced by a representative and was confirmed to the Keystone-SDA news agency on Sunday by Erich von Däniken's daughter.

>As a controversial explorer of the gods, Erich von Däniken made a name for himself worldwide. His books sold millions of copies.

>The general claim of Däniken over several published books, starting with Chariots of the Gods? in 1968, is that extraterrestrials or "ancient astronauts" visited Earth and influenced early human culture. Däniken writes about his belief that structures such as the Egyptian pyramids, Stonehenge, and the Moai of Easter Island, and certain artifacts from that period, are products of higher technological knowledge than is presumed to have existed at the times they were manufactured. He also describes ancient artwork throughout the world as containing depictions of astronauts, air and space vehicles, extraterrestrials, and complex technology. Däniken explains the origins of religions as reactions to contact with an alien race, and offers interpretations of sections of the Old Testament of the Bible.

The image is a screenshot of a Twitter post by Erich von Däniken, a German-American author and conspiracy theorist. The post is dated 10.01.2026 and is titled "It is with great sadness and shock that we must announce that Erich von Däniken passed away on January 10, 2026." The post includes a quote from Erich von Däniken, which reads, "It is with great sadness and shock that we must announce that Erich von Däniken passed away on January 10, 2026. If you would like to honor EVO and his life's work with a message, you can do so on the homepage: end.ch." The image is a black and white photograph of Erich von Däniken standing at a podium, looking to the left with a serious expression. The background is dark and out of focus, emphasizing the figure of Erich von Däniken. The Twitter handle "@erichvandaniken" is visible at the top of the image.

The image is a still from a video, likely from a historical documentary or a similar program. It features a man with a beard and curly hair, who appears to be speaking or explaining something. He is wearing a dark suit with a patterned tie and a light-colored shirt underneath. His hands are raised in a gesture that suggests he is emphasizing or explaining something. The background is blurred, but it seems to be an indoor setting with a golden hue, possibly a room with columns or a similar architectural feature.

In the bottom right corner of the image, there is a logo with the letters "H" and "HISTORY.COM" in a red and yellow color scheme. The text "HISTORY.COM" is in a larger font size compared to the "H" and "HISTORY" text, indicating that it is likely the name of the website associated with the content of the video. The style of the image is typical of a video still, with a focus on the subject and the context of the scene.

The image is a digital illustration of a character that resembles a stylized version of the character Pepe from the popular internet meme. Pepe is depicted with a green body, large black eyes, and a large, open mouth. He is wearing a blue shirt and has a thoughtful expression on his face. The character is holding his chin with his right hand, and his left hand is resting on his chest. There is a question mark above his head, suggesting a moment of contemplation or confusion. The background is plain and white, which contrasts with the character's vibrant green and blue colors. The image is simple and cartoon-like, with a focus on the character's facial expression and body language.

The image is a screenshot of a news article from GeoNews. The article is titled "Scott Adams, 'Dibert creator,' paralyzed below waist in medical emergency". The author of the article is Scott Adams, who is known for his comic strip "Dibert". The article provides a personal health update on Scott Adams, revealing that he is paralyzed below the waist. The article also mentions that the author is currently in a hospital bed and is receiving radiation treatment.

The image shows a man in a black shirt, wearing glasses, holding a computer monitor with a cartoon character on it. The monitor displays a cartoon character with a speech bubble that reads "I'm paralyzed below the waist. I can't move any muscles. I don't have feeling, just can't move any muscles." The man is smiling and appears to be in a relaxed state.

The image is overlaid with a red circle with a blue outline, which is a common symbol for a news article or a video. The text in the image is in English and is presented in a standard font, with the article's title and author's name at the top. The image is a composite of the article's content, with the man's face and the computer monitor being the central elements. The overall style of the image is informative and designed to convey the news article's content clearly.

[28 / 6]The image depicts a narrow, dimly lit staircase leading upwards. The staircase is constructed of concrete and has a worn appearance, with visible signs of age and weathering. The steps are worn and uneven, with some areas appearing to be missing or damaged. The walls surrounding the staircase are also made of concrete and show signs of age and weathering, with some areas of peeling paint or discoloration. The lighting in the image is dim, with the only source of light coming from the top of the staircase, casting a shadow on the steps. The overall atmosphere of the image is eerie and mysterious, with a sense of isolation and abandonment. There are no texts or discernible brands present in the image. The style of the image is a realistic photograph with a focus on the architectural details of the staircase.

Hi /x/, can you describe any true paranormal experiences you might have had? Or, failing that, anything creepy/unexplained/weird?

I love reading through the old greentexts but it becomes readily apparent this shit isn't real.

What have you got?

The image is a photograph taken from an open doorway or window, showing a view of a residential backyard during twilight. The sky is filled with clouds, and the sun is setting, casting a warm, golden hue over the scene. The backyard is lush with green grass and various plants, and there is a wooden picnic table with a bench in the center. On the table, there are several potted plants and a few items that appear to be clothes hanging to dry. To the left of the doorway, there is a green trash can. In the background, there are two houses with white walls and gray roofs, and beyond them, a cityscape can be seen with a few buildings and a large body of water. The overall atmosphere of the image is serene and peaceful.

I once saw a UFO that coincided with a very high strangeness "feeling"

>be me

>get up at 5am to get ready for my shitty factory job

>have breakfast and a cup of coffee while I wait for my coworker to pick me up in our carpool >had a big fight with housemates last night about how dirty our kitchen was >see a big spec of dirt on the kitchen window and think "wow, this place is pretty nasty"

>stand up and go to wipe the dirt off the window and realize it's not dirt but something in the distance >looks like a dark grey dull metallic orb, it must be huge and at a considerable distance, maybe 50 to 100km away at a higher altitude than a helicopter but lower than an airplane

>i can even see a shining glint of morning light on its surface

>it is just sitting motionless in the air, i sit down with my coffee and stare at it >i get this distinct gut feeling that the object is also "staring" at me, like when you feel like someone or thing is watching you in the woods

>i watch it intently for 15 minutes when my coworker calls me outside >look away for a split second to check my phone and when i look back it's completely vanished >that night tell my friends what i saw, they told me that around the same time an airline pilot reported a UFO a few hundred km away and it was all over the news

The image is a photograph featuring two palm trees with their trunks intertwined, set against a backdrop of a clear blue sky and a calm sea. The palm trees are lush and green, with their fronds reaching out towards the sky. The beach in the foreground is sandy, and the water is a light blue-green color, suggesting a tropical or subtropical location. The sky is bright blue with a few scattered clouds, indicating a sunny day.

There are no texts or discernible human figures in the image. The style of the image is naturalistic, capturing a serene and tropical setting.

Ghosts are real but there is no way to understand them scientifically from our current standpoint. I've always been fascinated in the paranormal but only experienced genuine haunting activity in a bar I worked in where a guy hung himself in the 1930s after losing all his money gambling. You would experience a lot of sensory anomalies but never actually witness them if that makes sense. Like hearing glasses slammed loudly on the bar counter when nobody was there but the glasses never moved, or heavy footsteps creaking floorboards but the boards themselves didn't move. Or the sound of a gate or door violently shaking but seeing no evidence of it. I think they can effect your sensory perception but not tangibly interact with physical objects, just making you perceive them to do so. I'm sure if you filmed it on camera you wouldn't have seen anything.

I think there also has to be a correlation with transient activity. Like they gain "energy" from lots of people moving through the space they are haunting and tied to. I think you're more likely to find paranormal activity in old buildings with lots of visitors passing through than in completely abandoned buildings. In that building the times you were most certain to experience paranormal activities were after hours when there had been 500+ people through the building over the course of the day but rarely if ever on quiet weekdays. When I was younger the bar in my town had a similar haunting and the staff also only experienced activity after really busy nights, the building was like 150 year old inn and coachhouse where some guests were apparently murdered in the 1800s

I had one that was a bit weird and didn't seem to get partially explained until about 10 years later

>Friend gets new gf and we often sit in her house

>This is back in the PC is the family computer days

>Me and friend are both DJs (19) and her dad is too so we all get on well

>Albeit we play a completely different type of music to him and DJ at a very different club to him

>One night the three of us sit in hers while her dad is at the club

>Listening to one of friend's sets on the PC

>Gets this really odd distortion over the top like listening to two radio stations at once

>His set gets drowned out by her dad's voice introducing whatever tune he's about to play because it's his daughter's favourite and dedicates it to her

>This is weird in itself because we've been to his events before and he never ever goes on the mic

>Tune starts playing, but only for a few seconds and then it gets drowned out by friend's set again

>We put it down to somehow both sets played at once when no one was touching the PC

>Friend's gf says it doesn't make sense because his sets are recorded at the club, but it's always on cassette (boomers you see) and he never puts them on the PC because he wouldn't know how to

>We're doubtful and check the PC, but none of his sets are on there so it's a bit tougher to explain

>Mostly forget about it it was just an odd happening

>About 7 or 8 years later her dad dies unexpectedly

>She keeps all his old cassettes and plays them from time to time because she still likes the music

>One day I'm at their place and she puts one of the cassettes on

>Her dad's voice comes on and introduces a tune for his daughter and dedicates it to her because it's her favourite

>Literally exactly what we had heard on the PC years before

>Three of us get spooked

>At least we're part way to solving the mystery now

>Except we aren't because the date is written on the cassette and it was the last event he did two weeks before he died

The image shows a green and red electronic musical instrument with a microphone.

The instrument has a large, colorful keyboard with black keys and a red and white button on the right side. The keys are arranged in a standard piano layout, and there are various colorful stickers and symbols on the keys, including a yellow and red square with a face, a blue and white square with a face, and a red and white square with a face. The instrument has a handle on the right side and a small, round speaker on the top. The background is blurred, but it appears to be a dark, possibly indoor setting with a hint of a blue object in the top right corner. The style of the image is a close-up photograph with a focus on the instrument, likely taken in a retail or display setting.

There are no visible texts on the image.

Fuck that thing. Cocomelon is already demonic. Probably why it got possessed by something. Only other explanation I can think of is that the thing has another internal battery or capacitor or something making it still run. But I dont see how it would have that much juice to be running all night like that and so loud.

[1 / 1]The image is a vibrant tie-dye pattern with a central heart-shaped design. The heart is surrounded by a pattern of concentric circles, with the colors ranging from blue to yellow, and the pattern is composed of small dots and lines. The background is a gradient of colors, transitioning from blue at the top to yellow at the bottom.

At the center of the image, there is a text that reads "LOVE IS REAL" in white capital letters. Below this, in smaller white letters, the phrase "NOT FADED AWAY" is written. The style of the image is reminiscent of a psychedelic or tie-dye poster, often associated with the hippie culture of the 1960s and 1970s. The overall impression is one of a statement or a message, possibly related to love or a message of staying true to oneself.

it's actually worth it. don't copy paste someone else's journey. you make your own. you listen to people who've walked before you so you don't end up turned into some narcissistic "guru" cosplay. you check things against sacred texts, you test, you observe. psychedelics can help (or not), meditation can help (or not). there's no single recipe. it's not a "final destination" where you get a badge and you're done. it's learning how to walk, again and again. ancient civilizations, mystery traditions, mystics, occult schools. all of them dropped crumbs. they don't all agree, but they rhyme. awakening isn't about becoming special. it's about becoming honest.

Yo faggots. People generally want to meet a vampire or find one to be turned. I decided to become a vampire myself by just starting my own bloodline, which would make me the FIRST vampire of my generation. Makes sense right? After all even the first vampires had to be created first. If you are wondering if I have any plans how to do this so far: No. But I am sure I will find inspiration soon.

Good luck on your schizo journeys too!

Sucking up (pun intended) to existing vampires always seemed like a losing strategy so yea find a way to transform directly and you are right that if generation matters you would be more powerful. Magick always seemed like the best bet imo and even in VtM that was the origin of one of the clans.

Yes I was talking about the Tremere clan. Notice I said EVEN in VtM with it's heavy Abrahamic lore a mage stole vampirism. IRL magick can create a full on Caine with no curses, at least in theory. On the other hand vampires are not locked out of true magick like in VtM either. So basically Vampire (or other non-human) Sorcerers have a huge advantage overall.

Vampires don't exist in reality but ghouls do. The government does a good job suppressing them when they go public. What do you think "prion diseases" that affect cannibals really are? Ghoul outbreaks. You have to consume all the flesh on a human being's body and you gain supernatural abilities by doing cannibalism. (it turns you into a damned, demonic entity though) they're suppressing the truth, not the existence of ghouls. It's an ancient custom, and the reason why gravedigging was illegal for so long. They didn;t want people to dig up the coffins and find the body missing. That's also why they buried people alive, to have fresh meat when they devoured the person at night.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with a dynamic pose. The character has white hair and is wearing a red and black outfit with a visible chest piece. The character's right hand is raised, and the fingers are extended, as if in the midst of a powerful gesture. The character's face is obscured by a red bandana, and the eyes are glowing red, suggesting a sense of intensity or focus. The background is a gradient of red and white, with splatters of red paint that add a sense of action or chaos to the scene. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of manga or anime art, with a focus on action and character expression.

Vampires exist, I've encountered them first-hand as a child. They were of the Tzimisce clan, the RPG "Vampire the Masquerade" is a recruitment tool, most of what's written in the books is real, but concealed under the guise of fiction. I didn't know much about it but I pissed them off by mentioning I played as a Tremere in the video game, the Tzimisce do NOT like the Tremere. The Tzimisce used their fleshcrafting powers to fuck up my neck like 14 years ago, been to chiropractors and physiotherapists and they couldn't do shit to fix it.

"The Last Question" is a science fiction short story by American writer Isaac Asimov. It first appeared in the November 1956 issue of Science Fiction Quarterly; and in the anthologies in the collections Nine Tomorrows (1959), The Best of Isaac Asimov (1973), Robot Dreams (1986), The Best Science Fiction of Isaac Asimov (1986), the retrospective Opus 100 (1969), and Isaac Asimov: The Complete Stories, Vol. 1 (1990). While he also considered it one of his best works,[1] "The Last Question" was Asimov's favorite short story of his own authorship, and is one of a loosely connected series of stories concerning a fictional computer called Multivac. Through successive generations, humanity questions Multivac on the subject of entropy.

The story blends science fiction, theology, and philosophy. It has been recognized as a counterpoint to Fredric Brown's short short story "Answer", published two years earlier.[2][3]

History

In conceiving Multivac, Asimov was extrapolating the trend towards centralization that characterized computation technology planning in the 1950s to an ultimate centrally managed global computer. After seeing a planetarium adaptation of his work, Asimov "privately" concluded that the story was his best science fiction yet written. He placed it just higher than "The Ugly Little Boy" (September 1958) and "The Bicentennial Man" (1976). The story asks the question of humanity's fate, and human existence as a whole, highlighting Asimov's focus on important aspects of our future like population growth and environmental issues.[1]

"The Last Question" ranks with "Nightfall" (1941) as one of Asimov's best-known and most acclaimed short stories. He wrote in 1973:[4]

Why is it my favorite? For one thing I got the idea all at once and didn't have to fiddle with it; and I wrote it in white-heat and scarcely had to change a word. This sort of thing endears any story to any writer. Then, too, it has had the strangest effect on my readers. Frequently someone writes to ask me if I can give them the name of a story, which they think I may have written, and tell them where to find it. They don't remember the title but when they describe the story it is invariably 'The Last Question'. This has reached the point where I recently received a long-distance phone call from a desperate man who began, "Dr. Asimov, there's a story I think you wrote, whose title I can't remember—" at which point I interrupted to tell him it was 'The Last Question' and when I described the plot it proved to be indeed the story he was after. I left him convinced I could read minds at a distance of a thousand miles.

Plot summary

"The Last Question" is told in a series of vignettes spanning billions of years, and follows a line of advanced computers that grapple with the problem of entropy, the inevitable increase in disorder that will eventually cause the universe to run down.

By the year 2061, Multivac, a self-adjusting and self-correcting computer, has allowed mankind to reach beyond the planetary confines of Earth and harness solar energy. Two technicians, Alexander Adell and Bertram Lupov, celebrate Multivac's role in this development. Over drinks, they debate whether the Sun's energy will last forever. Lupov argues it will not due to entropy, prompting Adell to ask Multivac if entropy can be reversed. Multivac responds, "INSUFFICIENT DATA FOR MEANINGFUL ANSWER". In an era in which mankind has achieved interstellar travel, the Jerrodd family travels to a new planet, X-23, guided by a Microvac. When the children ask about the stars running down, Jerrodd queries the Microvac about reversing entropy, receiving the same answer: "INSUFFICIENT DATA FOR MEANINGFUL ANSWER". When humanity's rapid population growth starts filling galaxies, two immortals, VJ-23X and MQ-17J, discuss the energy crisis this creates. They ask the Galactic AC[a] if entropy can be reversed, getting the same response. Later, Zee Prime and Dee Sub Wun, two clusters of disembodied human minds, explore galaxies and learn from the Universal AC that humanity's original star is a white dwarf. Zee Prime asks how to prevent stars from dying, again receiving "INSUFFICIENT DATA FOR MEANINGFUL ANSWER". As the universe nears its end, humanity, now a collective consciousness called Man, asks the Cosmic AC how to reverse entropy. The AC continues collecting data, promising to work on the problem.

Upon the universe's end, Man fuses with AC after asking the entropy question a final time. With matter, energy, space, and time gone, only the Cosmic AC remains in hyperspace, still pondering the last question. After a great interval elapses, AC discovers how to reverse entropy but finds no humans left to share the answer. It decides to demonstrate the solution, declaring, "LET THERE BE LIGHT!", recreating the universe.

Themes

Philosophy

Although science and religion are frequently presented as having an oppositional relationship,[6] "The Last Question" explores some biblical contexts ("Let there be light"). In Asimov's story, aspects like the great meaning of existence are culminated through both technology and human knowledge. The evolution from Multivac to AC also emulates a sort of cycle of existence.[7]

Dystopian happy ending

Multivac's purpose was conceptualized with a desire for knowledge, promoting the idea that more knowledge will lead to a better and more fruitful future for humanity. However, the computer's answers regarding the future suggest an inevitable exhaustion of the Sun, and this thirst for knowledge becomes an obsession with the future. The story's end displays a dichotomy between annihilation and peace.[8]

Dramatic adaptations

Planetarium shows

"The Last Question" was first adapted for the Abrams Planetarium at Michigan State University (in 1966), featuring the voice of Leonard Nimoy, as Asimov wrote in his autobiography In Joy Still Felt (1980).

It was adapted for the Strasenburgh Planetarium in Rochester, New York (in 1969), under the direction of Ian C. McLennan.

It was adapted for the Edmonton Space Sciences Centre in Edmonton, Alberta (early 1970s), under the direction of John Hault.

It was adapted for the Gates Planetarium at the Denver Museum of Natural History in 1973 under the direction of Mark B. Peterson[9]

It subsequently played at the:

Fels Planetarium of the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia in 1973[10][11]

Planetarium of the Reading School District in Reading, Pennsylvania in 1974[11]

Buhl Planetarium, Pittsburgh in 1974[12]

The Space Transit Planetarium of the Museum of Science in Miami during 1977[13]

Vanderbilt Planetarium in Centerport New York, in 1978,[14] read by singer-songwriter and Long Island resident Harry Chapin.

Hansen Planetarium in Salt Lake City, Utah (in 1980[15] and 1989[16])

A reading of the story was played on BBC Radio 7 in 2008 and 2009.[17]

Gates Planetarium in Denver, Colorado (in early 2020)[18]

In 1989 Asimov updated the star show adaptation to add in quasars and black holes.[16]

Douglas Adams's Deep Thought (from The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy) seems to make a nod towards Multivac, at least in the 2005 film, saying that there is insufficient data for an answer.

Multivac is a fictional powerful computer appearing in over a dozen science fiction stories by American writer Isaac Asimov. Asimov's depiction of Multivac, a mainframe computer accessible by terminal, originally by specialists using machine code and later by any user, and used for directing the global economy and humanity's development, has been seen as the defining conceptualization of the genre of computers for the period (1950s–1960s). Multivac has been described as the direct ancestor of HAL 9000.

Description

Like most of the technologies Asimov describes in his fiction, Multivac's exact specifications vary among appearances. In all cases, it is a government-run computer that answers questions posed using natural language,[1] and it is usually buried deep underground for security purposes. According to his autobiography In Memory Yet Green, Asimov coined the name in imitation of UNIVAC, an early mainframe computer. Asimov wrote that he had unwittingly assumed the name "Univac" denoted a computer with a single vacuum tube (it actually is an acronym for "Universal Automatic Computer"), and called his fictional giant computer "Multivac".[2] His later short story "The Last Question", however, expands the AC suffix to be "analog computer". However, Asimov never settles on a particular size for the computer (except for mentioning it is very large)[3]:86 or the supporting facilities around it. In the short story "Franchise" it is described as half a mile long (~800 meters) and three stories high, at least as far as the general public knows, while "All the Troubles of the World" states it fills all of Washington D.C.. There are frequent mentions of corridors and people inside Multivac. Unlike the artificial intelligences portrayed in his Robot series, Multivac's early interface is mechanized and impersonal, consisting of complex command consoles few humans can operate.[3] In "The Last Question", Multivac is shown as having a life of many thousands of years, growing ever more enormous with each section of the story, which can explain its different reported sizes as occurring further down the internal timeline of the overarching story.[4]:20

Storylines

Multivac appeared in over a dozen science fiction stories by American writer Isaac Asimov, some of which have entered the popular imagination.[5][6][7] In the early Multivac story, "Franchise", Multivac chooses a single "most representative" person from the population of the United States, whom the computer then interrogates to determine the country's overall orientation. All elected offices are then filled by the candidates the computer calculates as acceptable to the populace. Asimov wrote this story as the logical culmination – and/or possibly the reductio ad absurdum – of UNIVAC's ability to forecast election results from small samples.[8][9]

In possibly the most famous Multivac story, "The Last Question", two slightly drunken technicians ask Multivac if humanity can reverse the increase of entropy. Multivac fails, displaying the error message "INSUFFICIENT DATA FOR MEANINGFUL ANSWER". The story continues through many iterations of computer technology, each more powerful and ethereal than the last. Each of these computers is asked the question, and each returns the same response until finally the universe dies. At that point Multivac's final successor, the Cosmic AC (which exists entirely in hyperspace) has collected all the data it can, and so poses the question to itself. As the universe died, Cosmic AC drew all of humanity into hyperspace in order to preserve them until it could finally answer the Last Question. Ultimately, Cosmic AC did decipher the answer, announcing "Let there be light!" and essentially ascending to the state of the God of the Old Testament.[10] Asimov claimed this to be the favorite of his stories.[11]

In "All the Troubles of the World", the version of Multivac depicted reveals a very unexpected problem. Having had the weight of the whole of humanity's problems on its figurative shoulders for ages it has grown tired, and it sets plans in motion to cause its own death.[12]

Significance

Asimov's depiction of Multivac has been seen as the defining conceptualization of the genre of computers for the period, just as his development of robots defined a subsequent generation of thinking machines,[13] and Multivac has been described as the direct ancestor of HAL 9000.[12] Though the technology initially depended on bulky vacuum tubes, the concept – that all information could be contained on computer(s) and accessed from a domestic terminal – constitutes an early reference to the possibility of the Internet (as in "Anniversary").[14] Multivac has been considered within the context of public access information systems[1] and used in teaching computer science,[15] as well as with regard to the nature of an electoral democracy, as its influence over global democracy and the directed economy increased ("Franchise").[8][9][16] Asimov stories featuring Multivac have also been taught in literature classes.[17][18] In AI control terms, Multivac has been described as both an "oracle" and a "nanny".[19]

This cover of I, Robot illustrates the story "Runaround", the first to list all Three Laws of Robotics.

The Three Laws of Robotics (often shortened to The Three Laws or Asimov's Laws) are a set of rules devised by science fiction author Isaac Asimov, which were to be followed by robots in several of his stories. The rules were introduced in his 1942 short story "Runaround" (included in the 1950 collection I, Robot), although similar restrictions had been implied in earlier stories.

The Laws

The Three Laws, presented to be from the fictional "Handbook of Robotics, 56th Edition, 2058 A.D.", are:^[1]

A robot may not injure a human being or, through inaction, allow a human being to come to harm.

A robot must obey the orders given it by human beings except where such orders would conflict with the First Law.

A robot must protect its own existence as long as such protection does not conflict with the First or Second Law.

Use in fiction

The Three Laws form an organizing principle and unifying theme for Asimov's robot-based fiction, appearing in his Robot series, the stories linked to it, and in his (initially pseudonymous) Lucky Starr series of young-adult fiction. The Laws are incorporated into almost all of the positronic robots appearing in his fiction, and cannot be bypassed, being intended as a safety feature. A number of Asimov's robot-focused stories involve robots behaving in unusual and counter-intuitive ways as an unintended
